11 APPLY FOR HOUSING JOB

Indorsements for Manager's Appointment Made at Committee Meeting.

Names of eleven candidates for the position of manager of the Marion war housing center were presented the Marion civilian defense housing committee at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of Mayor Snare.

The committee met with representatives of the National Housing Agency, including D. E. Mackelmann of Cleveland, assistant regional representative of the NHA.

The manager probably will be named about the middle of next week by NHA officials, Mr. Mackelmann said. The position was created in connection with the program announced last week, to convert a large number of Marion residences into living units for two or more families.

The only action taken at the meeting yesterday was indorsement of a number of applicants for the position. The committee took this action at the request of Mr. Mackelmann, who said NHA officials wanted the recommendations as a guide in making the final choice. The position will pay up to $3,200 a year.

Duties Indicated

It will be the duty of the manager to take applications from property owners who desire to have their properties converted into multiple units and to forward these applications to NHA officials for final action. The manager also will direct registration of houses and rooms for rent for the benefit of defense workers. This program now is under way with headquarters in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce. As the program progresses and some living quarters are made available under the program the manager also will list prospective tenants to assist NHA contract brokers in closing leases.

Under the program the government will take leases on properties to be converted and will make the necessary alterations without cost to the owner. The government will be reimbursed from rentals charged tenants. At the end of a given length of time, or when the cost of the remodeling has been recovered by the government, the properties will be returned to the original owners.

Committee Named

Mayor Snare, acting as chairman of the meeting, named a subcommittee consisting of Cutler McGrew, Louis E. Michel, Mrs. E. H. Hollandshead and A. J. Berry to investigate the problem of finding quarters for the housing center program.

Mr. Mackelmann told the committee that a number of persons already had made applications for conversion of their properties.

In order to provide living quarters for new families coming here soon to operate the Scioto Ordnance Plant and the Marion Engineers Depot, Mr. Mackelmann said the city would need 1,500 new living units as a starter. Some of these will be provided by private construction, some by government prefabricated trailers and others by the new home conversion program.

BUS STRIKE SET

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18—R. L. Jacobs, vice president and general manager of the Arcodel bus system, reported today that local members of the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Operators of America had voted to strike at midnight tonight in protest against discharge of a member on grounds of inefficiency. Jacobs said the strike would force suspension of service on the Columbus-Zanesville, Columbus-Newark, Zanesville-Interlaken and Zanesville-Weehlfield lines.

Harding Cagers To Play Home Games at Edison Jr. High

N. C. O. Contests Return Here After Absence of Year and a Half.

By LOREN TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

Taking steps to assure a full 1942-1943 basketball schedule for the North Central Ohio conference, league officials last night voted to continue the league sports program despite restrictions governing transportation and also granting Marion Harding High school permission to use the Thomas A. Edison Junior High school gymnasium for its home games.

These decisions were made at the league's annual football meeting last night at Hotel Talbot in Galion.

The latter action returns N. C. O. basketball to Marion after an absence of a year and a half. Near the end of the 1940-41 season Harding was forced to play games originally scheduled for Marion in Edwards gym on the Ohio Wesleyan university campus in Delaware. This move was made after the Marion Steam Shovel Co. gym, used for many years as the Harding team's home floor, was taken over for war work.

After several attempts to convert Marion sites into suitable gym floors failed because of inability to secure heating plants and various essential materials for conversion, Harding officials accepted the N. C. O.'s offer granting the Marion team use of home floors of other league teams. And while this was the only alternative for Marion, it could not be called a successful solution to the problems involved. In the neighborhood of $500 was taken from the school's football fund to carry the basketball load.

No Alternative

Acceptance of Harding's offer by the league this year was about the only way it could continue to operate as a league member as far as basketball is concerned. Had the league rejected the proposal basketball probably would

ADMIT LOSS OF BATTLESHIP

Tokyo Acknowledges U. S. Report Ship Sunk in Action Off Solomons.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — Japan announced today that one of her battleships was sunk in the latest battle of the Solomons.

That loss, which the United States Navy previously had announced and which imperial headquarters in Tokyo thus could conceal no longer, and Japan's acknowledgment of the U. S. report that a second battleship was damaged attested to the magnitude of the American triumph.

The sunken battleship, whose name and class the Japanese withheld, was the first the enemy has announced as sunk in the war.

The announcement appeared in a communique, broadcast by the Tokyo radio, which went further than any before in admitting Japanese naval losses.

These, however, still were less than have been announced by the United States and the communique also tried to soften the picture of Japan's reverse in the vital struggle for the Solomons bases by claiming to have struck even heavier blows to the American squadrons than the U. S. Navy has announced.

Other Ships Listed

Imperial headquarters also listed a Japanese cruiser and three destroyers sunk or damaged and seven transports damaged.

Against this total of 13 vessels sunk or damaged—compared with the U. S. Navy's preliminary announcement that the total was 30 vessels sunk or damaged—the Japanese claimed the casualties inflicted by them totaled 13 or 14 vessels sunk and 11 or 12 damaged. Against the latter figure stands the U. S. Navy's announcement of the loss of two light cruisers and six destroyers, with one night engagement yet to be reported.

The Japanese also announced the loss of 41 planes but claimed to have shot down or otherwise destroyed 74 or more rival aircraft.

Imperial headquarters issued its version of what was called the third Solomons' naval battle after the Tokyo radio, abetted by the German and Italian radios, had trumpeted in advance to the world that "another bombshell announcement" was forthcoming.

Only Salvage Tin Cans To Be Collected by City

Unless tin cans are properly prepared for salvage purposes they will not be collected from Marion homes by the city service department.

An order to empoyes not to collect tin cans unless they are prepared for contribution to the nation's war effort, effective today, was issued this morning by Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell, who also is co-chairman of the Marion county salvage committee.

Start of the collection yesterday, in which an estimated 15 bushels of tin cans were picked up by the city's four rubbish trucks, brought the order.

"The cans were very poorly prepared," Mr. Caldwell said.

"As of today, the men are not to pick up any cans not properly prepared for salvage and under no conditions are they to take unprepared tin cans in the routine rubbish collection," the safety-service director declared.

Statewide Order

The action to "get in the tin" is in line with methods used in other cities and with suggestions made by the general salvage committee for Ohio. "We are not operating on our own volition, but on definite orders from the WPB," Mr. Caldwell said.

Marion was brought into the tin salvage area several weeks ago when the WPB ordered that on Nov. 17 collecting of tin cans must start in all cities of 25,000 population or over in 15 northeastern states and the District of Columbia.

Because of the need for conserving the present supply of tin in the United States, a supply that must last for the duration of the war, every tin can used in every home in Marion city and county must be turned back to de-tinning foundries for re-use.

The city's rubbish trucks, four of them operating six days a

Basic Registration For Gas Rationing Started Today; Volunteer Workers Meet

Sign-Up for "A" Cards Gets Under Way at Schools; Workers Told About Regulations Governing All Other Types of Cards.

In Marion county and throughout Ohio, the west and mideast, motorists began registering today for the literally priceless coupon books which will be needed to get gasoline after Nov. 30.

An estimated 15,000 Marion city and county motorists are among 1,900,000 in Ohio.

Today through Friday the city's three junior high schools will be open from 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. to accept applications for basic rationing and to issue "A" books and "A" windshield stickers for cars. In the county the basic registration is being conducted in the centralized schools, most of which will be open from 3 p. m. to 9 p. m. The city elementary schools and the centralized schools in the county will dismiss classes at 3 p. m. for the three days. No classes will be held in the junior high schools.

The OPA yesterday modified its rule that persons owning more than five tires per car could not obtain coupon books. The Associated Press reported from Columbus.

Motorists with "sixth" tires may assign them to the government and turn them in later. The OPA said the officials collection agency—Railway Express—had been unable to pick up all tires reported, necessitating the change in policy.

School for Workers

In Marion county the full effect of the gasoline ration program was brought home to some 200 men and women last night when they attended a school of instruction for the volunteers who will conduct the supplemental registration which starts next Monday in The Star auditorium on North State street.

"At last the war has come to Marion and you are all in it," Paul L. Jarvis, associate rationing official from Columbus told the volunteers in their meeting at Central Junior High school.

Two and a half hours later, when he completed instructions in handling applications for B, C, T and E and R books, it was evident that Dec. 1 homemakers will be packing lunches daily for hundreds of Marion city and county office workers, plant workers, industrial officials, professional men and women and school boys and girls who for years have been riding in passenger cars back and forth to home for lunch.

Take Oath

Too, the volunteers had stood and with raised right hands had taken the solemn oath "I (name) do solemnly swear that I will perform my duty as a volunteer worker of the United States of America to the limit of my ability and with the courage and integrity equal to the task. That I take this obligation freely, that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the task upon which I am about to enter, so help me God."

In connection with the school, in which Mr. Jarvis covered the minute details of the supplemental registration, the appointment of a board of review headed by Charles E. Cox as chairman, was announced. The board, which will be composed of approximately 20 men and women, will pass on "quawks" if any coming in during the supplemental period. Members also will serve in a supervisory capacity during the registration and several members will be in the auditorium at all times.

The board will make a special study of the regulations and will take special instruction, in order to be prepared to handle all questions of those seeking additional rations of gasoline. Members will serve without pay, as do the members of the Marion county rationing board, and all those connected with the basic and supplemental registration.

Interpretation Problems

Upon uniformity of interpretation of the gasoline rationing regulations throughout the country will depend the success of the program to save vital rubber and the responsibility for uniformity will rest on the volunteers who handle the supplemental registration, they were told by Mr. Jarvis.

"Remember what our soldiers put up with in the way of inconvenience and by comparison the problems of the civilian are insignificant, are nothing," was the

Three New Registration Dates Set for December

Selective Service Boards To List Youths Who Became 18 Since Last June 30.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. President Roosevelt fixed three separate registration periods today for youths who have reached or will reach their eighteenth birthdays in the last half of this year.

By proclamation, he set the week beginning Dec. 11 and ending Dec. 17 for draft registration of those who became 18 in July and August.

Young men who reached that age in September and October will register in the following week and those who became 18 in November and December will register in the week starting Dec. 28 and closing Dec. 31.

Mr. Roosevelt also provided for continuous registration on their birthdays of youths who become 18 on or after next January 1. If the birthday falls on a Sunday or holiday, they must register the next day.

This will be the sixth draft registration. The last, on June 30, covered young men who already were 18 or 19 and those who had become 20 since the preceding registration.

To Insure Victory

Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation said the new registration and the others which had been held were "advisable to insure victory, final and complete, over the enemies of the United States."

The new registration will take place simultaneously in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, with daily registration hours fixed for 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., (local time).

Late registrations will be permitted for those unable to present themselves during the stated periods because of circumstances beyond their control.

The Chief Executive asked that all employers give their workers sufficient time off to complete their registrations.

Selective service headquarters revealed today that local boards had been instructed to reclassify all registrants heretofore deferred because of conviction of crimes.

No more deferments are to be made on this ground unless the registrants "are completely disqualified normally and are not eligible for a waiver under the new Army standards," the boards were told.

Waivers Asked

The Army has authorized waivers in "especially meritorious cases" even for men who have served terms for treason, murder, rape, kidnaping, arson and other "heinous crimes" if their conduct has been fitting for at least six months after their release from confinement.

The local boards were told to ask Army waivers for these men and others with less serious records if they were otherwise available for military service, and to, order their induction if the Army grants their waivers.

The boards further were told that in cases where men thus reclassified and needing no waiver were under probation, parole, or suspended release, they should ask "the proper civil authority" to surrender custody of the man "for the period of military service."

Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey announced today that men deferred as essential farm workers must get approval of their draft boards if they wish to leave their jobs or else be classified as available for immediate military service.

This applies to married men with children as well as to all others, Hershey's aide said, and is effective immediately.

The regulation was revealed in an announcement of instructions sent by Hershey to local boards.

The 18 and 19-year-olds who registered last June 30 are to be called for induction in the order of their birthdays so far as practicable, with the oldest being called first.

The instructions forbade the boards to release any farmer-deferred men "for voluntary enlistment in either land or naval forces."

Two new classifications were set up for deferred farm workers. Those with dependent wives, children or other grounds for dependency will be put in Class 3-C and those without dependency grounds in Class 2-C.

President Roosevelt yesterday urged all federal government agencies and departments to cancel any military deferments that had been given government employes by reason of such employment.

NAZIS MAKE SLIGHT STALINGRAD GAINS

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Nov. 18—At the end of the first week of renewed offensive thrusts into siege-torn Stalingrad, the Germans today had gained only a few yards in persistent and costly efforts to occupy the northern factory district for winter quarters.

The Army newspaper Red Star said the Nazis had been concentrating their attack on a sector less than 400 yards wide, trying vainly to break through to the Volga.

Generally the broad picture of a stalemate costly to the stalled axis armies holds from day to day with the minor changes in the lines tending to offset one another.

Paying with a thousand casualties, the Germans in a series of attacks advanced very slightly in a factory sector of Stalingrad, the midnight Soviet communique said.

SPAIN MOBILIZES TO GUARD NEUTRALITY

By The Associated Press

Spain's move to mobilize more of her potential 3,000,000 soldiers is generally accepted in informed European quarters as a bona fide effort to avoid fighting, rather than any step toward military cooperation with her axis friends, it was indicated in reliable private advices reaching New York today.

With German military might sitting firmly on his northern doorstep and powerful allied forces arrayed across the narrow Gibraltar strait to the south, Generalissimo Francisco Franco has authorized reinforcement of his land, air and sea forces, it was disclosed yesterday (Tuesday) in Madrid.

BRITISH CHUTE TROOPS DROP ON KEY POINTS

Paratroopers Lead Advance of 150,000 Allied Soldiers Into Tunisia.

By The Associated Press

Adolf Hitler was reported massing a fleet of more than 1,000 planes in southern Italy, Crete, Sardinia and Sicily in an attempt to defend the last axis bases in North Africa today as the Nazi-controlled Paris radio announced that German troops had "captured" Bizerte in Tunisia.

Use of the word "captured" appeared to refute previous Berlin assertions that the Germans moved in "to defend their French compatriots in Tunisia" and met only cooperation from French soldiers in the vital North African buffer state.

Tunisia lies between American-held Algeria on the west and Italian Tripolitania on the east.

Simultaneously, British parachute troops borne by huge American transport planes were reported swarming down on key points in the Mediterranean coastal colony, spearheading an advance by perhaps 150,000 allied soldiers from Algeria.

American sky troops already had occupied an airport on the Tunisian frontier.

Reports of intensified British submarine activities indicated that Hitler was desperately seeking to rush sea-borne reinforcements across the Mediterranean to the dark continent, as well as concentrating great numbers of planes for a showdown battle.

Fingers Badly Burned

But the axis claw that only a few months ago threatened to squeeze the entire Middle East was now steadily withdrawing its burnt fingers.

While Anglo-American troop columns drove eastward into Tunisia, British headquarters announced that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army advanced 60 miles across the Libyan desert yesterday to reach a point only 70 miles from the axis base at Bengasi on the Gulf of Sirte.

The new British sweep in pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's tattered armies narrowed the axis "escape gap" between Tunisia and Libya to about 320 miles.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British Middle East commander-in-chief, told newsmen that only 15 of 500 axis tanks in Egypt escaped destruction or capture, but predicted that Rommel would attempt a stand near El Agheila, at the bottom of the Gulf of Sirte.

Rommel himself was reported in Tunisia for a last-ditch attempt to stem the allied offensive.

Conflicting reports variously figured the French in Tunisia as aiding both the allies and the axis, some responding to Hitler's appeal for help while others accepted Admiral Jean Darlan's invitation to fight on the side of the United Nations.

The German-controlled Paris radio asserted that French colonials fought against allied contingents in South Tunisia.

The allied southern column was reported advancing from western Algeria into Tunisia in an enveloping arc which would cut the road to Libya and divide the axis forces.

Chottsis Land

Reuters said allied parachutists had landed "close to an important town in Tunisia and were moving swiftly eastward." Huge American transport planes, escorted by fighters, carried the parachute troops to their objectives without opposition, it was reported.

Meanwhile, a dispatch from Monrovia, Liberia, suggested that the strategic naval base at Dakar, French West Africa, might fall to the allies through negotiations. It quoted a Vichy broadcast as reporting that a military mission from Dakar was on its way to allied-occupied North Africa. Allied headquarters in London, however, had no confirmation of the report.

Strongly defended by French troops and warships, Dakar has long been regarded as a potential axis threat to South America and even the United States.

Gasoline Ration Regulations Explained

challenging statement he made to the volunteers in urging them to consider carefully the applications for "B" and "C" cards.

Question Period

In a question and answer period after Mr. Jarvis had outlined the procedure of the supplemental registration, some of the following points were brought out:

Q. What about a ride-sharing arrangement in which there is only one car and four or five using it? A. If it is possible, get another car to participate. The first time the one car fails to start or breaks down four or five men will not be at work.

Q. From time to time workers participating in a share-the-ride program might quit their jobs or be transferred. What would happen? A. The ration would be reduced by one member because his book and car are not available. Try to replace the worker and if that cannot be done, show proof and the ration in the other books will be made up equally.

Q. If the user of the car is not the owner is it all right for that person to request supplemental rations? A. Yes. In the supplemental ration we are interested in the user and the use the car is to be put to.

Q. If there are two cars in a family will both get ration cards? A. Yes, both will get basic "A" cards. But remember, if one of the cars is to be used for occupational driving, there are 200 miles of occupational driving in the two books, 150 in each.

Q. If a husband and wife both work in the same plant, one days and the other nights, what about their driving rations? A. They should try to participate in a share-the-ride program by day and get occupational ration for the night worker.

Q. What about additional ration for taking children back and forth to school? A. If they are small children and there is no adequate public transportation, yes. But, the program will not allow working men to travel back and forth to home for lunch and most of the children will have to carry lunches too.

Q. It means no [illegible] time for lunch? A. Yes.

Q. What about [illegible] agencies? A. They could come under the "B" rather if they travel more than 150 miles a month in their work.

Handling Emergencies

Mr. Jarvis, in response to a question involving emergencies, said that every filling station will have a form available to the public in case of death or extreme illness in the family, or instances where property is in danger. When there is no time to get a special ration, the driver will fill out the application, get the gasoline and then there will be a check made of the application.

In discussing the "C" or preferred ration, he said there are no privileged persons in this category, that all must comply with regulations.

To get a "C" card an applicant must come under one of the "essential 20" categories:

1. Official government business, but not from home to office. (Government employes must show government vouchers of mileage paid them for their private cars. State departments in Columbus are certifying to the Marion county rationing board those Marion city and county workers who use state cars in occupational travel.)
2. Transportation of U. S. mail.
3. School officials traveling from school to school.
4. Persons carrying four or more pupils or teachers to or from school in the absence of alternative means of transportation.
5. Wholesale delivery of newspapers.
6. Transporting non-portable newsreel equipment for dissemination of public information. (This does not include ordinary photographic equipment.)
7. Licensed medical practitioners. (Doe not include retired practioners.)
8. Licensed farm veterinarians (Must be in active practice.)
9. Ministers, priests and rabbis.
10. Public health nurses, medical students and internes for making necessary calls.
11. Transportation of farm products and supplies by the farmer.
12. Licensed embalmers. (This does not include undertakers, who come under the office of defense transportation.)
13. Transporting by an authorized agent in order to maintain peaceful relations, and recruiting essential war workers.
14. Transportation of farm and marine workers, seamen and commercial fishermen.
15. Transporting armed forces.
16. Transporting war workers.
17. Construction, repair and maintenance.
18. Scrap dealers.
19. Motorcycles for delivery or messenger service.
20. Religious practitioners.

Who Must Sign

Mr. Jarvis told the volunteers that either the registered owner or the person entitled to use the automobile must sign the application for supplemental ration, and that the application must show either a good faith ride-sharing arrangement with three or more persons, all of whom must sign the application, or that such ride-sharing is not feasible and there are no reasonably adequate means of transportation.

Four key factors will determine the ration to be issued:

1. The applicant's occupation.
2. Mileage required for the occupation.
3. A good faith group-riding arrangement has been entered into.
4. No group-riding is possible and public transportation is inadequate.

With those four factors in mind, to get a "B" card which provides up to 470 miles of occupational driving a month, the applicant must show that he or she is driving more than the 150 miles a month for occupational purposes—the occupational mileage on the basic "A" card—and that they regularly carry three or more persons in connection with their occupation under some form of ride-sharing plan, or that they must carry three or more persons and that alternate means of transportation are inadequate.

"C" Qualifications

If the applicant meets all the above requirements and does more than 470 miles of occupational driving a month, they must definitely prove they are in the "essential 20" classification in order to receive a "C" card.

After it has been determined that the applicant qualifies under one of the 20 categories, the application will be submitted to a member of the rationing board for approval.

During the supplemental registration board members will be present at all times to handle the applications for "C" ration.

Mr. Jarvis emphasized that no one should make application for anticipated mileage.

"We are not concerned with extraordinary circumstances, only the mileage the applicant has driven in the last three months," he explained.

If four workers ride together in a share-the-ride plan and all have cars, four applications for supplemental ration will be submitted, each having the same four names but a different owner's name. The mileage will be divided four ways and each applicant will receive enough gasoline for a quarter of the total occupational driving in a month. If one of the workers lives a considerable distance away, such as five miles out of town, he will be given a daily ration to get him into town to the point where he meets the others in the share-the-ride program, and then he will participate in the ride-sharing plan.

"You will find some who will not want to share their rides," he told the group, "but if you can follow the plan that they have in the east — no ride-sharing, no gasoline—you will find passenger car owners coming in fast with the proper applications."

Compliments Industries

Mr. Jarvis complimented the transportation committees of Marion's large industries for their work on share-the-ride programs among their employes.

"They are doing a splendid job," he declared, "and are making it infinitely easier for you to carry on the supplemental registration."

Completing details of the "B" and "C" applications, Mr. Jarvis discussed briefly the "T" and "E and R" cards, fleet rations and bulk coupons.

"T" books, he explained, will be issued to applicants who already have a certificate of war necessity from the ODT and who fill out a simplified form. In category are all commercial trucks, buses, ambulances, taxis, hearses, jitneys and any vehicle available for public rental.

The "E and R" books will be issued to applicants for gasoline for non-highway use in vehicles such as motor boats, tractors, farm machinery, airplanes, gas engines and cleaners and dyers.

Fleet Rations

"Fleet rations" are defined as follows:

A fleet passenger car or motorcycle is one of three or more owned or leased by the same person or firm and used by the same person or firm principally for the same related occupations. An official passenger car is one owned by or leased by the federal, state, local or foreign government. (Fleet or official trucks and buses—except those owned or leased by federal or state military forces—must get ODT certificates of war necessity.)

Fleet and official passenger cars or motorcycles may not get "A", or "D" basic rations. Applicants must fill out a special fleet and official application form, listing the excess tire certification. When the application is approved, a "D" or "C" card is issued.

Fleet rations do not cover home driving because the cars are primarily for business use and are not privately owned.

To get a bulk coupon the applicant must have storage facilites, within regulations, and must use 250 or more gallons of gasoline a month.

Edgar W. Barnhart, chairman of the county rationing board, presided and introduced Mr. Jarvis. Preceding Mr. Jarvis' talk, everyone present filled out a blank to show which afternoons and nights next week, except Thanksgiving day on Thursday, he or she could work.

To Work In Shifts

The volunteers will work in two shifts, from 12 noon to 5:30 p. m., and from 5:30 to 9 p. m.

Each volunteer was given copies of the basic and supplemental forms and a mimeographed manual to study between now and next week.

Members of the gasoline rationing committee, Robert F. Williams, chairman, Howard Greer and John Dowler, were introduced by Mr. Barnhart, who outlined briefly the county-wide ration set-up.

Mr. Jarvis, in his opening statement to the volunteers said:

"Your presence here tonight is evidence of your patriotism. Your government understands and knows you are sacrificing of your recreation time, your energy and yourselves to this job. At the same time you are assuming a tremendous responsibility in view of the far reaching effects of this program."

He commended the gasoline committee for its work in setting up the program for the gasoline rationing.

FARM COURSE TO START AT PLEASANT TP. SCHOOL

Classes for Young Farmers' Club and Other Adults Set.

A course in agriculture for members of the Young Farmers' club of Pleasant township and older farmers of the community, offered by the vocational agriculture department of Pleasant Township school, will open Monday night at 8, Milford Schmidt, teacher, announced today.

Classes will meet at the school for an hour and a half one night a week and will continue until spring work begins. Methods of more abundant production of crops will be studied, and a program of assistance to farmers in present agricultural problems will be planned. After the instruction period recreation will be offered.

SHORTAGE OF JURORS

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18 — A shortage of jurors delayed the trial of two brothers charged with kidnaping a 15-year-old Manchester girl. War and farm work was responsible for the shortage, but the court hoped to proceed today with selection of a jury. The defendants, Clarence and Arthur R. Parsons, formerly of Parkersburg, W. Va., are accused of forcing the girl into their car at Aberdeen, O., and driving to Lexington, Ky.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

WAR TRACED BY HISTORIAN

... tion of the
... set-up.
... Dr. Hastings
... n story at Ohio
... ty, and his address was given following the Marion Rotary club's weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding. His subject was "Fundamental Issues of the War."

In a question and answer period following his talk he called attention to the historical fact that the imperialistic set-up remains unchanged for more than 100 years."

New Era Coming.

"Regardless of who wins there will be a change," he said. "Things are not going to be put back the way they were. When Johnny comes marching home it will not be Johnny, and Johnny will not stay at home."

Wars come from two causes first, superficial events, such as the attack upon Pearl Harbor, and second, underlying trends and developments of long duration, Dr. Eells said. These he designated as big fundamental conflicts which have been going on for centuries. They are hidden, but nevertheless present.

These deep rooted causes were the chief theme of Dr. Eells' discourse. He took his audience far back into history to review development and growth of the several great empires and the resulting conflicts.

Fundamentals Listed.

He enumerated and commented upon what he regards as the five fundamental issues of the present war; first, the imperialistic world set-up; second, the conflict between Europe's bourgeois and proletariat; third, the unification of Europe; fourth, stabilizing of civilization; fifth, conditions growing out of the last war.

Dr. Eells voiced the opinion that unification of Europe is possible and that some type of world federation may be effected, but made no prediction as to just what form it might take. This will be one of the major problems of peace negotiations, he said, with the warning that, "Unless we use every effort to get a just peace we won't get it."

Guests of the Rotary club included W. E. Fouse, Akron Rotarian, Joe Halberstein, Hugh Hay and Grover C. Snyder of Marion.

Majority in Poll Favors "Pay-As-You-Go" Taxes

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18—Although the treasury department has shown little enthusiasm for the Ruml Plan, facts collected by the Institute during the last few days indicate a growing need for some type of "pay-as-you-go" program to take care of the coming income tax bill.

With this in mind, the Institute wired tele reporters in a dozen of the large urban centers throughout the country to survey in an accurate cross-section of the community the pay-as-you-go question and to telegraph results back to its Princeton offices.

A vast majority of those interviewed were in favor of a government pay-as-you-go plan to collect taxes in preference to the present system of collecting taxes a year after the money has been earned.

Need For Plan Cited

The earlier, nation-wide study indicating the growing need for the Ruml Plan or some similar "painless" method of putting the country on pay-as-you-go revealed three facts of vital importance to the Treasury and those interested in financing the war:

1. It was discovered that many people who will be required to pay income tax bills are uncertain as to whether they come within the provisions of the newly enacted tax bill.

2. Even those who know they will have to pay an income tax underestimate the extent of the new levies.

3. A majority of the people have not made any special provisions as yet to pay for the taxes that will come due in March.

Here is the question on the pay-as-you-go issue asked in the telegraphic survey:

"Next March 15 the government will collect an income tax on money that you earned throughout this year. Would you like to have that plan continue, or would you prefer to pay your taxes on the money as you earn it?"

Satisfied with old plan	35%
Prefer to pay as earn	65

The problem the Treasury department faces is to effect the change from the present system to pay-as-you-go without making the people pay not only the previous year's but also current taxes.

The Ruml Plan, devised by Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy & Company, Inc., would do this with a bookkeeping device which would in effect write off the 1942 income tax bill and credit the payments which fall due March 15 to taxes on 1943 earnings.

Ruml Plan Little Known

While the Ruml Plan has been widely discussed in Washington and among tax authorities throughout the country, the public has little knowledge of it, as shown by answers to the following question included in the telegraphic survey:

"Are you familiar with the Ruml Plan, a proposal for paying taxes on current income rather than on the previous year's income?"

Familiar	22%
Not Familiar	78

The Institute's findings would indicate, however, that the Ruml Plan or a similar plan will be very much in the news soon after the new congress convenes in January.

CHAPTER 26
Telephone Booth

TODD didn't get much out of his 2 o'clock economics class. In fact he got nothing. He sat there staring out the window, still trying to figure out why he hadn't hung one on Talbott's chin. Maybe it was the direct approach Talbott had made. Or he didn't want to create a scene. Or—

Hold it, Malone' he told himself. You're not going to bite at that other stuff. That phoney loyalty stuff Talbott was talking about.

So what if Talbott was right. A little. What if it would be fairly easy to swing. Was that any reason to even give it a second thought?

Easy to swing . . Yeah, the right guy might have worked it out. When two teams were as evenly matched as State and Michigan it might be worked out. But you're not the right guy, Malone. You had a good cause to be the right guy but you're not. Even for $2000 that the Duke could see Talbott was right about it being an easy two thousand . .

Todd forced his attentions back to the professor lecturing up front. He riveted his eyes on the prof's face, making himself listen to every word even though the lecture wasn't making sense. A good many things failed to make sense in the next day or two.

Then, on Thursday night Ben Talbott walked into a drugstore near the entrance to the campus and went to one of the phone booths in the rear.

He hesitated for a moment, his finger on the dial, then dropped his nickel and closed the door behind him.

Almost at the same instant Anne Trevor walked into the booth next to his.

"Let me speak to Todd Malone, please . . " Talbott said.

Ann Reports

There was a knock on Susan's door. "Come in," she said. Anne Trevor entered and looked at Amy Bassett, then at Susan.

"Can I see you for a few minutes in my room, Susie!" Anne said.

"Sure thing," Susan put down her notebook and wondered at the queer expression on Anne's face. She followed Anne to her room.

"What's doing?"

Anne lit a cigaret nervously. "I stopped in at a drug store at the other end of the campus just a while ago and went into a phone booth to get an address from information. I had just dropped my nickel when I heard someone in the booth next to me ask for Todd Malone. Well—I was only human; I listened."

"So now you're repenting your sin as an eavesdropper," Susan joked.

"No, it isn't that, Susan—I overheard a good part of the conversation that took place at my end. The man in the booth next to me asked Todd if he'd changed his mind. He said something about two thousand dollars and then raised it to twenty-five hundred. He said 'all you got to do is call one wrong at the right time—that's the one that might do it.' Then he said, 'there won't be a soul in the stadium who'll be able to spot, including Michigan.'

"He told Todd he'd be a sap if he passed up a good thing."

Anne stopped and looked at Susan helplessly. Susan's lips were dry. She hardly dared think about what was in her mind.

"Did you hear anything else?" she asked.

Anne nodded. "Just one other thing. The man next to me finally said, 'so think it over — for the Duke.' Then I saw him go out with a smile. I don't know who he was. I never saw him before."

They were both silent again for awhile.

"I don't know what's going on but I thought I ought to mention it to someone—so—well, I told you."

"I understand, Anne. Thanks very much. But I want you to promise me you won't breathe a word of this to anyone. Absolutely nobody. I want to think about it for awhile. Tomorrow we'll talk about it again."

When Susan went to bed that night she turned her face to the wall so Anny couldn't see that her eyes were wet.

The alumni started coming Friday afternoon, not as many as in recent years but in sufficient numbers and in the proper frame of mind to insure a real homecoming week-end. A couple of the more recent graduates showed off new husbands.

But it all didn't quite jell with Susan. She didn't even feel like going to the grantic rally that night, the grand-daddy of all pre-game rallies according to the billing, with a bonfire scheduled to assume the proportions of the burning of Rome.

Anne took her aside after dinner. "Susan," she began uneasily, "About what — what about that—"

She wasn't quite able to really frame her question but Susan knew what she meant.

There was a note of resignation in Susan's voice. "Maybe we should do something about it. We seem to be sure what that conversation meant. Maybe I should put it up squarely to Malone."

"Oh, Anne, I don't know what to do," she added fiercely, "If anything happens I'll never forgive myself for having kept this quiet, but I just can't bring myself to confront Todd or tell Ed Luttrell, or anybody."

Susan leaned on a chair and stared out the window. "Shall I tell you what this really means, Anne? What we really have to do." If there is something to it—if he does have an opportunity to—to sell out the team—then he's got to overcome that temptation himself. I'm not a professional soul-saver or anything like that but the only way he can really do himself any good is to lick it himself. Maybe you have an idea what I mean."

Anne was not quite convinced, although she understood Susan's reasoning. "But perhaps, if we let him know that a conversation was overheard—"

"What would you think? At the best, it would just mean that we didn't trust him enough to let him decide." Susan frowned and her voice trembled. "And you did say that—that man went out smiling."

"Yes." Anne thought a moment. "But you're right, and heaven help us if—if—"

"He can't do it." Susan interrupted fiercely. "He just can't."

High Mark Set In Club Federation's Patroness Total

THE largest number of patronesses to be enrolled by clubs in the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs was reported yesterday when Mrs. R. A. Garvin, patroness chairman, announced that 825 patroness tickets had been sold for the 1942-43 season. An outstanding program which brought Gregor Ziemer, news commentator, to Marion early this month, and an intensive ticket campaign are responsible for the increased interest.

The report was given at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the federation in the recreation room of the First Presbyterian church. Miss Pansy Rauhauser of the literature and drama committee reported that Marion county was represented in the Ohioana library with 37 volumes by 17 Marion county authors. Miss Mabel Wheatley of the art committee told of the gift of an original painting by Mrs. C. G. Smith to the federation. The donor, Miss Wheatley explained, left to the art department the disposition of the gift. Miss Wheatley also told of the soldiers stationed with the 333rd Engineers here who are interested in continuing their study of art and asked the cooperation of the club women in procuring materials for them.

Mrs A. W. Bacon, chairman of the sale of articles made by the blind of the state, talked on the work and also gave a report of the Central district conference held last month at Newark. Mrs Carl Danner reported on the Victory House and the federation's part in the sale of bonds. Mrs. B. E. Kleinmaier, memorial chairman, reported the deaths of Mrs. Grace Parlette Sifritt and Mrs. J. B. Virden of the Research club and Mrs. J. K. Schwinger of the Tuesday Study club. Mrs Paul Lust, president of the Marion Federation of the Child Conservation League, talked on the proposed day nursery.

Announcement was made of the next federation meeting to be held Dec. 1, by Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, program chairman.

Home Nursing Course To Be Held at Galion

GALION, Nov. 18 — For the third year the Galion Red Cross chapter will sponsor a Home Nursing course, with registration scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Galion High school home economics room.

Lucy Aller, health supervisor of the public schools will again be the instructor. Miss Aller stated that the first 20 registrants will be admitted to the class. RICHWOOD AND KENTON COUPLE WED IN MARION

Miss Donna Brown, Don Willes Wed; To Live Here.

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Donna Brown, of 731 East Center street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Brown of Richwood and Don Willes of Kenton, son of Mrs. Grace Willes of Fairfax, Va., and the late L. C. Willes, which took place Sunday, Nov. 1, at Epworth Methodist church. For the double ring service read at 12:45 o'clock by the pastor, Dr. S. M. Ingmire, the altar was decorated with greenery and baskets filled with white chrysanthemums, and lighted with tapers.

For the ceremony the bride wore a soldier blue crepe suit with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Warren G. Cyders who was her matron of honor, wore a brown and gold costume with brown accessories and her flowers were a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Completing her costume was a gold cross, a gift from the bride. Leonard O'Connor served as best man for Mr. Willes.

Miss Ruth Davis, costumed in blue, and Miss Evelyn Mae Isett, wearing a dress in a wine shade, lighted the candles for the ceremony. Their costumes carried out the bride's wedding colors, and they wore corsages of gardenias and the bride's gifts which were gold lockets. The bridegroom presented his best man with a gold watch chain.

Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence played a program of wedding music, including "Cantilena Nuptiale," Dubois, "Serenade," Schubert, "Gavotte," Gossec and "Love Dream" Liszt. During the ceremony she played "To the Evening Star," Wagner, and for the processional and recessional the bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

For her daughter's wedding Mrs Brown wore a blue and white crepe costume with black accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a black jersey dress with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

A reception at the Manor House followed the ceremony. Centering the table was a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The couple left later on a wedding trip to Milwaukee, Wis. They will make their home at 731 East Center street.

The bride was graduated from the Prospect High school in 1934 and the Marion Business college in 1940. She is employed with Old Fort Mills Inc. Mr. Willes is employed with the Marion Rapid Transit Co.

STATE FARM BUREAU FEDERATION MEETS

Marion County Represented at Annual Convention.

H. B. Brenner of Waldo and Robert Kesler of Agosta are Marion county's official delegates to the Ohio Farm Bureau federation's 24th annual convention, which opened in Columbus today. Also attending are V. F. Shroats, manager of the Marion Farm Bureau Cooperative, C. V. Beaver, president of the Marion county group, and Ivan Cooper, organization manager.

Mrs Viola Olsen and Mrs. Fred Cooper of Lallue are Marion county's entries in the membership selling contests. The district contest was held this afternoon and the state contest was planned for tonight. One member of the team attempts to sell the other member a membership in the Farm Bureau.

About 50 other Marion county members are planning to attend the convention, officials stated.

Attention of the convention will be focused on wartime agricultural problems, the Associated Press states.

James R. Mooney, director of the federation's information bureau, said delegates would attempt to formulate policies to help Ohio farmers produce additional food for "ourselves and the allied nations," and would discuss "many important farm problems due to the war."

That Extra Something!
...You can spot it every time

SKILL in anything comes from experience. An ice-cold Coca-Cola tells you that. When 57 years of experience get together with Nature's choicest ingredients, you're bound to get a special kind of refreshment.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola is the best-liked soft drink on earth. That's because it gives millions of others just what it gives you. First, there's the extra something you expect from something that was original to start with and still is. Second, you enjoy a blend of fine flavors. They set this drink utterly apart. Then, with a quick quenching of thirst, you get an after-sense of refreshment that is mighty satisfying. There's energy in that refreshment. You know you're face-to-face with quality.

Yes, the choice of experience tells you that only Coca-Cola tastes like Coca-Cola . . . only Coca-Cola refreshes like Coca-Cola. Nothing ever equals the genuine . . . the real thing.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coca-Cola, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time. No matter how short the supply, the quality of Coca-Cola carries on.

Where you find our work, you find workers welcoming ice-cold Coca-Cola. The rest-pause it provides means more work and better work.

Casualties

CASUALTIES of the United States, still negligible in spite of the high mortality at Pearl Harbor and the capture of many prisoners in the Philippines, soon must begin to mount. The 48,956 total announced as of Nov. 12 is going to be increased enormously in the near future.

Our fighting forces are moving into action. They are being exposed to risk on new fronts. The preparation for victory is nearing completion. The time for seizing the initiative is at hand.

There will be a heavy price to pay for victory. While it may never approach the proportions of the ghastly price Germany has paid to learn that it can't win, every circle of acquaintance will be affected.

If the enemy should find some way to bombard United States cities from the air, moreover, there would be added to the military casualties a heavy toll of civilian casualties. Even in a quiet period, hundreds of persons are killed each month by German bombs; Germany, where civilian casualties are highest, releases no casualty statistics either for its armed or civilian population.

There is no cheap way to fight or to win a modern war. The weapons are too deadly, too far-reaching. The forces involved are too vast, because behind the millions of soldiers are tens of millions of civilians, also participating in the battle. It was never more expensive to take life, yet life never was cheaper. This is perhaps the great fact of war, the one thing about the war that will be of permanent consequence.

When the casualties have been added up, that will be the lesson of the war—that and the pestilence and starvation and hardship. Every dead soldier, every dead civilian, every person crippled by the war will cry out against the butchery that the maniacs of force thrust upon the world.

Typewriter Army

SEN. BYRD of Virginia doesn't think Washington's typewriter army is doing anything to help the war. One-third of the jobholders, he says, could be turned back to private employment without hurting the war effort a bit.

The senator has an interesting point of view. Out here in the hinterlands, where Washington is just a place that businessmen go to when they get caught in its tenacles of red tape, it appears that the manpower saving to be made by reducing the size of the bureaucratic army one-third might exceed his expectations.

Many of the things the jobholders are doing have tied up personnel in private industry uselessly, too. The theory is that the Washingtonians, including those who work in the field, make things easier for the citizenry; therefore, there must always be more of them. The fact is that in many cases all they have done is to pester the people who are responsible for getting things done.

It is too much to hope that if a third of them were put at some useful task there would be a third less prying and questioning. That sort of thing will go on as long as government is proceeding on the assumption that every person who produces anything is guilty until the New Deal can't pin anything on him, then is merely on parole. But if there were a few less jobholders the remainder might have less time to get into the hair of the producers. That would be something gained. At least, Washington wouldn't have to be appealing for more typewriters to arm its swollen forces.

Relief for the Round File

A DETAIL of the deck-clearing trend in Washington that cheers newspaper offices is office of war information's order to cut out non-essential information issued by government agencies.

This will catch most of the so-called press releases that in years past have been deposited in what newspapermen sometimes call the round file—the waste basket. While newspapers appreciated the thought that caused them to be placed on the mailing lists, they failed to appreciate what to them was an obvious waste of effort and public money.

Frequently, they expressed their conviction that it was an indefensible practice and should be stopped, but it took a war to get results. They note that OWI'S order makes all material available on request and guarantees the full texts of speeches and reports to the wire services and special correspondents, which is the logical method of doing the job. For the duration of the war, at least, there will be no further occasion for the press to charge that a great many government employes must be earning their money furnishing material for paper balers.

We Talked Too Much

Men of Action Must Undo the Harm Done by Adolf Hitler and His Fellow Orators.

By GEORGE ROMNEY

George Romney is executive director of the Automotive Council for War Production. This is an abstract of an address given before the fall convention of the Michigan Council of Retail Merchants association on Oct. 15, in which he appealed to the United States from factory to front.

SOMEONE made the profound observation that the history of mankind moves in the following cycle. From fetters to faith and from faith to freedom, from freedom to folly and from folly to fetters.

Our country, and a large part of the world has, in the past century and a half moved from fetters to faith and faith to freedom, and now our folly, the folly of Americans, the folly of each of us, coupled with the folly of the rest of the world, has caused a struggle that will determine whether we can prevent the completion of the cycle by avoiding fetters and retaining our freedom.

In recent months, we have swung from deepest despair to high points of optimism. The extremes of both were unjustified, but it is apparent that the faith in ultimate victory has been measurably strengthened in this country since the dark hour at Pearl Harbor. I am personally more hopeful than I have been since Hitler marched into Poland. I think I can tell you why and want to describe the recent ceremonies held at Willow Run.

The thousands of Willow Run workers had stood outside the plant for an hour to hear carefully prepared and forcefully delivered orations by Gov. Van Wagoner, R. J. Thomas, president of U. A. W., and Assistant Secretary of War Patterson. The formal program was completed. A slight, humble, but great man was unexpectedly called on for remarks. Henry Ford walked to the microphone and said, "I can't talk, but I'll do all I can!"

In one short, pithy sentence he had expressed the spirit of the automotive industry. We can't talk, but we'll do all we can!

ONLY a few years ago, most of us were sailing along under the common belief that the people who do things might conceivably do things which were harmful unless their activities were properly hedged about by restrictions which would canalize their deeds into planned directions toward theoretical social goods.

In this worldwide clamor for social planning, the world's all-time champion planner turned out to be an Austrian paperhanger. He had made a botch of every piece of work to which he had ever turned his incompetent hands. He had failed so often at so many jobs that he nursed an ingrown frustration—a bad inferiority complex. Then, one day he discovered that he could talk. After that, there was no holding him.

Although we have had no Hitler in this country, our talkers have been more revered in recent years than our doers. In this very industry, an organization devoted to the principle of "doing less and less for more and more" has grown more rapidly in membership, influence and power than any other. Its program included an organized, deliberate attack on the doers.

Fortunately, a few months after Pearl Harbor, the organizers of "do less and less for more and more" abandoned the first half of their philosophy under the floodlight of public demand for deeds—for guns, tanks and planes—not words, although reversing their field that fast has proven difficult for some of them. However, they have not yet abandoned the "more and more" part.

The conversion of the plants that produced millions of automobiles each year has been virtually completed. To redeem its pledges that any machine tools or equipment that could not be used in its own war production would be available to other manufacturers, the industry has shipped more than 9,000 machine tools to factories across the length and breadth of the country.

Automotive management and automotive workers have learned how to build totally different products. Joint management-labor committees for improving labor morale were developed within the automotive industry before the war production board's plan was announced. In addition to training employes for new tasks, the companies are training thousands of army and navy mechanics.

Automotive aircraft production is a major accomplishment. Application of automotive ingenuity has resulted in savings of time, materials and manpower. In the first nine months of this year, the industry delivered $3,000,000,000 of war products. It has developed a secret weapon—secret as far as Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito are concerned.

THESE are tremendous deeds, yet the automotive industry has only reached the halfway mark in its volume of war output. How could it do so much? As a result of three things:

1. Because in this country we have more fully accepted the principle that "all men are created equal"—"equality of opportunity!" Individual responsibility! In this atmosphere alone could men put a whole country on wheels—develop the art of producing things to the point where the leaders of the United Nations can say to the world—"Our way means 'freedom from want.'"

2. Complete and intense concentration of the men in this industry on just one thing—production for victory.

3. The development of that secret weapon—the one that's secret as far as Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito are concerned. I refer to the new pattern of industrial teamwork set up by this industry. Few people realize that General Motors, Chrysler, Ford, Studebaker, Packard, Nash, White, Mack, International Harvester and other automotive companies are no longer individual competing concerns. Today they are members of one team.

The greatest teacher of all history said, "By their fruits, ye shall know them" and He said it after seeing a beautiful, symmetrical, healthy fig tree on which there was no fruit. "Faith without works is dead." Sacrifice without contribution is dead. Part of the complacency in this country arises from the fact that people think if they are turning in scrap, if they are buying bonds if they are driving the car less they are participating in equality of sacrifice and doing their share. That just isn't correct. No American is doing his share who is failing to do all he can!

IT IS heartening to me that the country is beginning to look and listen to the doers instead of the talkers. I am encouraged to believe that we will win this war because the deeds of the doers have been so great that the critics in the grandstand won't be permitted by the crowd to take the place of the manager and the players on the field.

We have found the way to beat the Axis. It is proving itself. Paul Hoffman, president of Automotive Safety Foundation, described it when he said at a meeting of all automotive companies last January: "There are those who suggest that if we are to accomplish that task, we must give up our freedom and submit to dictatorship. If I believed that to be true, I'd say, 'Amen.' But it so happens that it's a doctrine I utterly reject. I believe with all my heart and soul that free management and free labor, each doing its part of the job, but cooperating with each other and the government, can out-produce any economy in which labor is enslaved and management shackled. I say that, instead of trying to get Hitler's results by imitating Hitler's methods, we must surpass his results by avoiding his methods."

The spirit of the automobile industry is, it's more important to help each other than to blame each other. Let's stop talking so much and do all we can.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Nov. 18, 1932.

Dr. Guy T. Wasson of Bucyrus, Crawford county health commissioner, was elected president of the Ohio Federation of Public Health officials at a meeting in Columbus.

Theodore "Tony" Bartis, 42, of Marion, was in the county jail awaiting sentencing after a Marion county jury had found him guilty of second degree murder for the slaying of Thomas P. Basacos at a picnic eight miles southeast of Marion on the preceding Aug. 31.

Miss Mildred McCrary, 19, a Laltue High school graduate, won newspaper publicity for her decison to become the only woman cobbler in Ohio. Two years previously she had turned down an opportunity to attend college, deciding instead to work with her father in a shoe repair shop.

Mrs. Martha A. Richardson, 66, wife of Dr. E. O. Richardson, retired Marion physician, died at her home on South Prospect street.

Col. Raymond Robins, Prohibitionist and peace advocate, was found in the western North Carolina mountains after a disappearance of more than two months. He apparently had been suffering from amnesia.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Nov. 18, 1922.

Georges Clemenceau, aged French statesman and was premier, arrived in New York from France. A news dispatch from New York reported his trip was "the result of a secret understanding with Premier Poincare on a mission to foster Franco-American relations for the ultimate salvation of France."

Women workers of the Marion County Red Cross chapter completed plans for their annual membership canvass with the following leaders in charge: First ward, Mrs. Lewis Uhl; Second ward, Mrs. Frank McKeever; Third ward, Mrs. Frank Lust; Fourth ward, Mrs. Meyer Hess.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Virgil G. Hinds of Blaine avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Seaburn of North State street.

O. H. Carrier, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., returned to Marion after attending the international Y.M.C.A. convention at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Earl Sargent of East Church street entertained members of the H.T.M. club.

Members of the O.M.B. club entertained their husbands at a dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harmon of North State street.

Mrs. Mamie L. Pease and Joseph Williams, both of near Prospect, were married by Dr. Jesse Swank at the Epworth M. E. parsonage.

Mrs. Caroline Rowland of Detroit died at the home of her brother, Rev. J. G. Cooper of East Fairground street.

The world's first commercial airline was established between St. Petersburg and Tampa, Florida, about 29 years ago.

By International News Service

MOBILE, ALA. — Mrs Edwin K. Townsend of Mobile, is literally "taking up where she left off in World War I."

When the United States entered the first World war Mrs. Townsend watched her oldest son march away, then went to work with the Red Cross.

To date in World War II she has watched her other son, a member of the merchant marine, leave on dangerous missions many times.

And again she has gone to work.

Mrs. Townsend has organized three American War Mother clubs, her latest the MacArthur club, continues her work in the Red Cross, spends a certain amount of time cheering up mothers who have sons in the armed forces and keeps her house filled with soldiers who she entertains and "has in for dinner."

"In wartime mothers should encourage their sons. If they are cheerful and write often, it will help their fighting boys," Mrs. Townsend asserts. "They should also devote at least one-third of each day to doing war work."

Scrap in Quarries

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Abandoned quarries are being worked for scrap metal wherever practicable, according to the Office of War Information. A Michigan quarry holds 32 years' accumulation of dumped autos, streetcars from a dismantled electric railway, car wheels and trucks, heavy copper wire, a three-ton pumping engine with its boiler, and tons of other metal.

News Behind the News

Roosevelt Indirectly Urges Britain To Plan Independence for India.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 — The liberals are always complaining because Mr. Roosevelt never says anything about Britain granting india her freedom.

If they will read again the President's radio address on the Philippines, they may find he has spoken on India, definitely and forcefully — without identifying her specifically.

Delicacy of diplomacy may prevent Roosevelt from telling Britain straightout what to do with her empire problems, but the independence formula which he set for Quezon is not copyrighted. Furthermore, he said it was a "United Nations pattern, philosophy and ideal," for all small nations.

Briefly, it provides, first, the acceptance by both the larger and smaller nations of a sincere desire to work toward independence. It provides mutual economic and political planning, step by step, toward complete independence over a period of years.

No doubt it is the formula which Mr. Roosevelt will insist upon at the peace conference for India, and all undeveloped nations desiring independence.

Hitler First

A number of public men and people (including Rep. Maas) are crying out for aggressive action to destroy Japan in the Pacific, instead of concentrating largely on Hitler in Europe.

Whether or not this is desirable, it can not be accomplished. It is impossible.

The true facts are easy to see, although they naturally are not being announced officially. The Pacific war is a naval war primarily. To defeat Japan, we must have sea mastery in the western Pacific.

Anywhere we are to go, we must have superior naval strength. But we can not attain this as long as the British fleet is required in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

We can not even put forward our own best naval effort there while a threat to our shipping and shores keeps part of our fleet in the Atlantic.

Losses of our aircraft carriers (the fleet's offensive spearhead) reported around the Solomons the past month make our unsatisfactory Pacific naval situation even more plain.

Mr. Roosevelt's basic strategy, therefore, seems beyond debate, no matter how impatient we may be to even the score with the nether axis partner who has taken the greatest toll of our men and ships.

Futile Economy Plan

The voice of Senator Byrd is again crying out against the war waste in the wilderness of flowing billions that is Washington. He is drowned out by the swishing of paper currency—planned war expenditures for the year have reached $78,000,000,000 (twice the size of the debt that worried us before the war) and the debt has soared above $90,000,000,000.

It is practically impossible for any one, even with Byrd's unequaled persistence, to keep the war flow efficient by eliminating unnecessary expenditures. The condition of affairs prevents it.

For a very good instance, the new colossus of Washington (the Pentagon building) cost $70,000,000, although congress appropriated only half that sum. The war department found the other $35,000,000 in appropriated funds for other purposes.

That great sum of money was switched from the purposes for which it was appropriated without authorization by congress. Congress learned of the expenditure only after the building was up and the money gone.

In the case of the airport here (which cost three or four times what was expected) Mr. Roosevelt gave the funds to get it started from the lump sum of money granted to him. Ex post facto appropriations were then extracted from congress.

Spending Policy

This has been a spending administration. It favored spending for economic purposes before the war. It never believed in economy as a policy. It thought spending was good for the country and economizing was bad.

Some half-hearted attempts have been made, through the budget and treasury, to cut down a few unneeded activities (like CCC), but there has been no real force for the abolition of waste in this war administration anywhere.

Senator Byrd and his committee are now after the government bureaus which have accumulated more than 2,600,000 employes. He will meet with opposition everywhere, even from his associate senators and congressmen whose friends occupy the "thumb-twiddling jobs" that Byrd wants abolished.

The justice of his position and his own persistence will enable him eventually to get rid of some of the most war-worthless employes, but not until Mr. Roosevelt gets interested in war waste, and imposes pressure from the top, will there ever be a chance of any general constructive success in the effort.

The executive branch knows best where the duplication lies and where the thumb twiddler twiddles. Only a genuine drive to clean its own house, or to aid Byrd and congress in cleaning it, will cut these vast government expenditures to the point where the taxpayer can have confidence that he is getting his ware-worth for his money.

The Turps

Husband Joe Has Gone to the ... But Ethel Will Furnish All the News from Brookyn.

By DAMON RUNYON

Ethel Turp Writes from Brooklyn:—

DEAR SIR: My husband Joe Turp has went to the war and he told me to write and tell you he may be away awhile and one of the last things he told me of course that he loves me. He told me a million times. He said to write you often and tell you the news of our neighborhood so he can send you a letter himself from ... but there isn't much news this week.

I have moved to my mom's house as ... comes back because it would be too ... in the place where we were living without Joe. He was really a lot of company. He told me not to set under the apple tree with anybody else but him while he is at the war, of course he was just kidding because there is an apple tree in Brooklyn that I know of.

Joe said I wasn't to feel sad about him going to the war because he would get it over right away. He said he would bet those fellows would turn white when they see he was coming and my moms says she does every time I seem to be getting blue she says I ought to keep my mind and myself and not think about Joe, the way she did when my pops went to the war in Cuba a long time ago and when her brother went in Uncle Ben went to the war in France.

MY UNCLE BEN has gone to this war and my moms got another letter from him the other day from Ireland but it was like the letter he sent her, all blotted up by the sor so nobody can read enough of it to know what my Uncle Ben means. My mom says she doesn't mind not being able to read the letter because she supposes the blots are the swear words that my Uncle Ben always puts in his letter and that they are prepared to be uninteresting.

I told her my Joe wouldn't ever use swear words in his letters because he thinks of words like that and she said that if he stays at the war long enough my moms said I ought to knit things for Joe. I told her that was just exactly what I was going to me not to do because he heard the government would give him all the knit things and that there was no sense in my spoiling pretty eyes pushing a needle back and forth.

What kind of eyes? my moms asked me. My eyes, I said. Rubbish, she said. My eyes are 10 times prettier than yours and it does not matter them when I knit.

I CAN'T help worrying if my Joe is going to get enough to eat because he is very very fond of eating and I hope they always have a place for him where he can plug in his electric razor. I gave it to him for Christmas a few years ago and he loves it because he has a very tough beard and now he can't use any other kind, but my pops says he doesn't think the army carries sockets around with them, his day.

What will Joe do for shaving then? We said he can grow whiskers can't he? That is what I did when I was in the army.

But I don't think I would like my Joe with whiskers. They would hide his cute nose and his cute mouth. He grew a little mustache once and I didn't like that either. Do you think the government can afford to send a fix a place for his electric razor?

I am very sincerely—

Life from Lava?

By W. H. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

NEW YORK—A. L. Herrera, Mexican biologist, reports some evidence in laboratory experiments that life, at least on the scale of bacteria, may have originated in volcanoes, and may still be coming from eruptions.

His experiments have covered 10 years. He has mixed chemicals containing formaldehyde, ammonia, sulphur and cyanogen. From the mixtures have come 6,000 different microscopic forms, all of showing some of the properties of living organisms.

He does not claim that these test tube things are alive. But they act variously like the spores and chromosomes which are the parts which fix heredity. In fact he says they are the whole microscopic world.

In addition, chemical analysis shows that they produce certain reactions. From these reactions come vestiges of starch, amino-acids which are the parts of proteins and globules of green and yellow pigments. All of these are common products of living micro-organisms.

Volcanoes, he points out, contain in the combinations sulphur, cyanogen and ammonia, which may be the basis of continual synthesis and creation, of life from inorganic matter.

As supporting evidence that life can originate in inert matter he refers to experiments a few years ago in the United States, in which mixtures of olive oil and gasoline formed microscopic things which, though probably not alive, imitated much that happens in the case of living tissue.

Million to One Chance Saves Crew

By The Associated Press

LONDON—The crew of a naval aircraft from a British carrier owe their lives to a 1,000,000-to-1 chance and good navigation. The plane failed to return to the carrier as it should have done at dusk. So the captapin turned the ship about to look for it. Estimates were made that of course the machine should have taken and the carrier steamed back along this track. Then it turned to dark. The chances of finding the plane became slimmer and slimmer.

Then suddenly a lookout reported hearing a shout coming from the sea. Searchlights were switched on and there was the crew of the aircraft less than 100 yards from the ship, hanging on to a wheel and a piece of the wreckage.

"It was a slick piece of navigation to get so far back and get within 100 yards of them," the officer said. "But even so we should never have seen them. By some queer trick of sound, however, in the director tower heard their shouts. We were going 20 knots and I suppose there was one chance in 1,000,000 of hearing a shout above the noise of the ship at that speed."

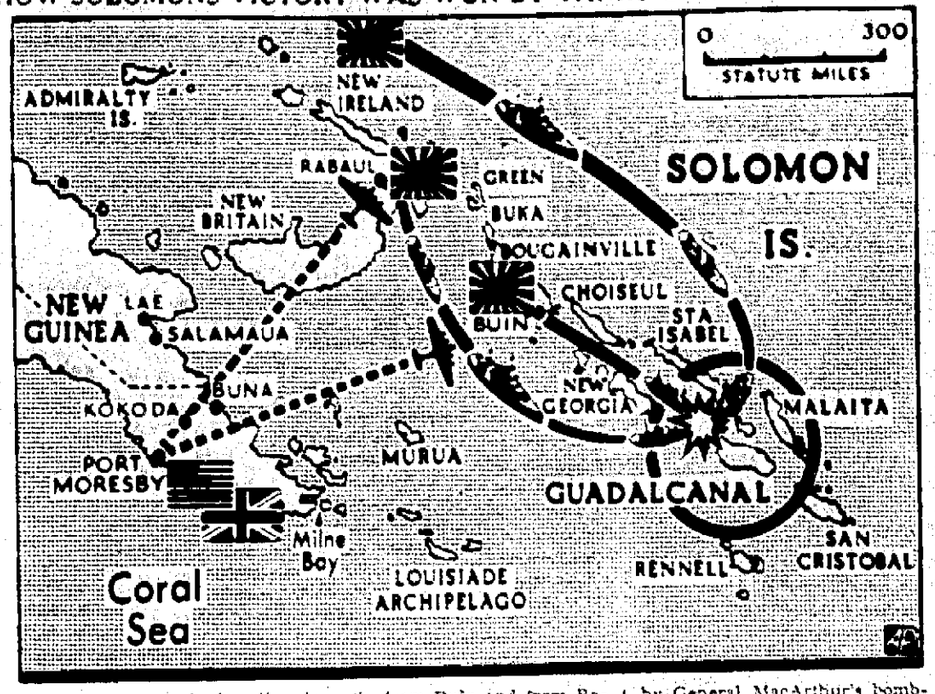
HOW SOLOMONS VICTORY WAS WON BY YANKS OVER JAP ARMADA



A Japanese armada invading the Guadalcanal area (circled) from three directions—from the north, from Buin and from Rabaul (lines of ships)—has been smashed by the U. S. Navy with 23 of the Jap ships sunk. Raids by General MacArthur's bombers (dotted lines) on Rabaul and Buin helped the Navy to victory.

Stopped for Speeding, Jailed for Car Theft

Stopped for speeding on Route 23 south of Marion yesterday afternoon, William D. Barnett, 23, of Detroit was lodged in the city jail last night after the state patrol learned he was driving a stolen car.

A charge of operating a stolen car will be lodged against him in Detroit, the state patrol said after communicating with Detroit authorities. Detroit police were expected here today to return him to face the charge.

Barnett was arrested a short distance south of Marion by a patrolman who was prepared to arrest him for speeding. In the routine check-up of ownership of the car it was discovered that the car, a coach, was a stolen automobile.

to be in Tunisia for a "last chance" attempt to stay the allied advance and save some part of strategic North Africa for the axis.

A Reuters dispatch from advanced allied headquarters in North Africa said Rommel was "making a desperate effort to organize axis forces" in Tunisia to meet the British First Army and United States forces moving into Tunisia from Algeria.

Far across the Libyan desert, the British Eighth Army advanced some 80 miles in one day to reach a point only 70 miles from Bengasi and further close the gap between the main body of Rommel's retreating forces and the British pursuers.

The allied advance in Libya is being made on a "wide front," today's communique from British headquarters said.

As the British forces approached the once important supply port of Bengasi, allied bombers roared in at a low level and set fire to a number of barges in the harbor, which apparently were intended for use in withdrawing elements of Rommel's Army.

Allied fighter aircraft, hovering over the Bengasi region, shot down six axis transport planes and destroyed at least six more on the ground.

British observers expressed the belief that a clash between the U. S.-British forces coming from Algeria and the axis forces clustered about Bizerte and Tunis was imminent. The same sources said the Africa corps, routed in Egypt, probably was preparing positions for a new stand at El Agheila in Libya.

Eisenhower Silent

The headquarters of Lieut. General Dwight D. Eisenhower remained silent about the operations in Tunisia, but widespread allied and axis reports indicated that combined allied forces were operating both in North and South Tunisia.

British Say Rommel Has 15 of 500 Tanks Left in Action

Alexander Predicts Nazi General Will Make Stand Near El Agheila in Libya.

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Nov. 18 — Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander of British forces in the Middle east, said today that only 15 of 500 axis tanks in Egypt escaped destruction or capture by the British Eighth army, but he predicted that Field Marshal Rommel's shattered forces would make a stand near El Agheila, Libya.

As Alexander spoke, the British Eighth army was within 70 miles of Bengasi and pursuing Rommel on a wide front, the Cairo communique reported.

The British commander said Rommel had "strong prepared defensive positions" in the El Agheila area and was "most likely to make a temporay stand" there.

"Of 500 axis tanks estimated to have been in the battle area only 15 escaped," Gen. Alexander said.

He warned that there may be further heavy fighting in North Africa and said "the enemy is groggy, but not knocked out."

"The battle will not be ours until the enemy is lying senseless," he declared. "He is a good fighter and will keep up his rearguard action in an effort to hold us back as long as there is a possibility of his getting reinforcements by air and sea."

Alexander said the American Sherman tank is "grand and as good as any on the battlefield—our troops love it."

Referring to Rommel, although he did not use his name, Alexander said:

"He will hang on. He always does. He's a good fighter, that fellow. He's trying to hang on and reorganize.

"When he gets to Tripoli and finds it too costly then he may attempt to get out—a sort of Dunkerque."

The slender, alert commander in chief, sunburned and handsome in his battle dress, exuded optimism but tempered it with caution. The present British and allied problem is one chiefly of supply as the Libyan chase extends to the west, he remarked.

"We have advanced 400 miles in a week, and that's terrific," he said. "We were pushed back from Tobruk to the El Alamein position in a fortnight. I believe—it happened before I arrived—but when our push started we sent him back in one week, twice as fast.

"If anyone deserves the blitzkrieg title we do on that performance."

The general said British casualties in the big push had been 13,600. The Germans and Italians, on the other hand, lost more than 30,000 in captured alone and scores more are being picked up daily, he said.

"The best opinion of my experts" places the total axis losses, killed, wounded and captured, at 75,000, Alexander asserted.

JAPS FAIL TO SHAKE U. S. PACIFIC DRIVE

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Nov. 19—Japan, despite a mighty concentration of air and sea power in the South Pacific, has failed to shake plans for an American offensive.

The Japs appear to have lost the initiative in that sector, paying heavily in planes, ships and men.

General Douglas MacArthur has taken the field in New Guinea for a growing land offensive there. The great Solomons victory of Nov. 13-15 demonstrates clearly allied command of the sky, sea and land in the Guadalcanal sector. All these things point to the shaping of plans to break into the greater Asia sphere of Japanese conquest and roll the enemy back.

The comment by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, relative to future action that "maybe it will be of our choosing, not their choosing," is regarded as highly significant.

Those in charge of operations point out there is a long hard fight ahead.

Admiral Nimitz commented "they are smart and do know how to conduct war and they are absolutely ruthless with their own people as well as ours."

Japanese loss of life has been heavy—5,000 in the battle of the Coral sea; more than 10,000 at Midway; and perhaps between 20,000 and 40,000 in the crumpling of the Guadalcanal-bound invasion force; as well as more than 5,000 on Guadalcanal.

It is believed that an important part of the trained naval aviation strength of the Japs has been destroyed. This may be the explanation why no carriers were used by the Japanese in the showdown effort last week.

week, will collect prepared tin cans set along the curbing, whether or not the contributor is a subscriber to the city service. In the case of regular subscribers, the collectors will go into the basements of homes to get the contributions.

George Alber, who is serving as co-chairman with Mr. Caldwell on the salvage committee, will announce plans for the county collection program in the near future.

Easily Done

The process of preparing a tin can for salvage is simple.

After pouring out the contents rinse the can clean with water and remove the label. Open the bottom end, leaving a small hinge as was done at the top, turn both the top and bottom ends into the can. Put the can on the floor and step on it. It will flatten easily. Place it in a container in a dry place until it is collected by the service department.

Within a short time Mr. Caldwell will announce a regular schedule of collection areas.

He was a farmer and had resided south of Sycamore nearly all his life.

Funeral services will be Friday at 2 p. m. at Moores funeral home. Burial will be in Nevada.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS GOOD WAR NEWS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—President Roosevelt sized up a fortnight's "good news" from the battle zones last night as indicating that the turning point of the war had been reached.

But he tempered his analysis, presented in a radio speech to the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum, with cautious phrases. He said it would continue to be an uphill fight—"all the way"—that there could be "no coasting to victory," and that it was no time for exultation.

"There is no time now," Mr. Roosevelt said, "for anything but fighting and working to win."

He described the encounter between Japanese and American warships Nov. 13 to 15 as "one of the great battles of our history." At a press conference earlier he had said that the engagement, in which the navy listed enemy losses at 23 vessels against two of our light cruisers and half a dozen destroyers, represented a major victory.

It was the first time he had used the word "major" in referring to any of the battles in the Pacific theater.

Despite this crushing blow administered to a numerically superior Japanese fleet, the President said in his speech that a "gigantic job" remained to be done.

Mackenzie Finds Africa Tense As Allies Drive On

DeWitt MacKenzie resumes today from Cairo, in a daily perspective column, "The War Today." For the past 11 days he has been enroute from England, a trip complicated by the Allied campaign in North Africa. He was in London when the occupation of French North Africa started and was stranded five days in West Africa awaiting plane transportation to Cairo.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

CAIRO, Nov. 18—From the Mediterranean sea down to the steaming equator, Africa's huge hulk is vibrating today with news of the great allied victories along its broad northern shores.

There in the hinterland we find men from many allied nations responding with feverish energy in an effort to back up their colleagues on the battlefield.

There are Yankee boys there from all parts of Uncle Sam's wide acres. And you have to experience the hardships of primitive Africa to understand what a glorious heritage we are defending in smiling America.

There are British and French soldiers and others of our allies, all working in fine unison.

Natives Give Willing Help

With them, laboring on the edge of jungles and across blazing deserts, is a countless multitude of willing natives. These happy-dispositioned folk know little about the issues involved in the war, but they do understand that an axis victory means bondage.

And what are these soldier and civilian workers contributing to the cause? Broadly, one can say these allied men are daring diseases of the jungle, enduring terrible heat and other hardships to open up and maintain transport routes over which pour men and supplies for the allies' needs throughout Northern Africa and the Middle East.

In many places, over endless reaches of this northern half of the dark continent, the allies are doing amazing pioneering jobs which will open up this mysterious land to the outside world.

During the 11 days it took me to reach Cairo from England by devious routes, I covered some 8,000 miles, mainly by air. Since I had already flown the Atlantic to reach Britain, it needs small imagination to see that if this war does nothing else, it is opening up the world to air transport.

Excitement in Lisbon

I was in Lisbon the day Uncle Sam made his sensational landing on Northern Africa. The medley of peoples who go to make up the Portuguese capital's population these days seethed with excitement.

There was little news beyond word that a big operation was under way, but the fact that the allies had assumed the offensive in a new quarter was in itself a momentous development.

When we drove the nose of our ship into the heat of equatorial Africa the next day, word of the offensive already had arrived. American soldiers and civilians in this particular port were exuberant.

Most astonishing, however, was the fact that the denizens of the surrounding jungles not only knew of the attack but that they got the news from their own sources. It seems fanciful as I write it, but the story of the operation on the far-away northern shore had been flashed southward by drums just as messages have been transmitted for hundreds of years.

Delaware Co. Auto Thefts Cleared Up

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 18—Theft of three automobiles here over the week-end was cleared up yesterday by the confession of an Erie, Pa., youth who was stranded when his automobile broke down after he reached the city last Friday.

Police said they were told by Charles Irwin, 18, that he and two companions, George Wells, 18, and Hazel Lentz, 16, had stolen the automobiles and also had taken groceries from a parked car. Some of the stolen articles were found in their possession.

After reaching Delaware, Irwin told police, the trio stole an automobile belonging to Mildred Wisner of near Delaware, and abandoned it in Ashley. Saturday night they took a car owned by Clifton Henderson, abandoning it at the old fairground in east Delaware. The third car, stolen Sunday from Floyd McElroy of Delaware, was found yesterday by police.

JAPANESE FALL BACK AGAIN IN NEW GUINEA

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 18—Japanese forces continue to fall back toward Buna but their air force has reemerged in an effort to harass allied columns closing relentlessly on that Papuan base, today's communique disclosed.

Latest reports from the New Guinea front said advanced allied ground units, now directed in the field by General MacArthur, were rushing on toward the coast from Awala, only 30 trail miles from Buna, without meeting serious opposition.

In the first attempt in some weeks to challenge Australian and American air command over New Guinea, 18 bombers and fighters attacked advanced allied ground units Monday in the Buna area and sank two trawlers along the coast.

"T" Formation May Figure Prominently in O.S.U.-Michigan Game Strateg

Deception, Speed and Power To Be Ammunition of Powerful Foes in Next Saturday's Clash.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18—A [illegible] T [illegible] party is on tap here Saturday when the powerful [illegible] of Michigan and Ohio State college in Ohio's horseshoe stadium [illegible]

The "T" backfield formation—a four-backfield man who line up to form the letter T with the quarterback standing directly behind center to take the ball—[illegible] football, involving clever, tricky [illegible]

Michigan and Ohio State made [illegible] of the "T" but in Saturday's game [illegible] may depend on [illegible] extent as they resort to speed and deception in an effort to out-maneuver each other's powerful lines.

Speed is paramount for the successful operation of the "T" and these two old rivals have plenty of swift backs and may run each other ragged for 60 minutes before the anticipated crowd of 80,000.

Michigan's Backs

In Michigan's backfield are Capt. George Ceithaml at quarterback, Tom Kuzma and Paul White, halfbacks, and sophomore Bob Wiese at fullback. Ohio has Capt. George Lynn at quarterback, Paul Sarringhaus and Les Horvath at halfbacks and sophomore Gene Fekete in the fullback spot.

Ceithaml, like Lynn, bears the brunt of the blocking assignments in addition to selecting plays and each is a key cog in the "T" attack.

Ohio State got a look at Michigan plays in a lengthy, muddy practice session yesterday and also worked on some new plays which the Bucks hope to spring against the Wolverines.

Up at Ann Arbor Michigan Coach Fritz Crisler dished out new plays and warned his varsity that the new formations might mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Coach Paul Brown of Ohio said there was little hope that "Touchdown Tommy" James would be in shape by Saturday. The speedy halfback, who alternated with Sarringhaus, suffered a shoulder separation in the Illinois game last Saturday.

Gallon Player Ready

Brown announced, however, that Bill Durtschi of Galion, out with a knee injury since the Southern California game five weeks ago, would be ready to play if needed.

Saturday's Michigan-Ohio tilt will be the 39th between the schools in a rivalry dating back to 1897.

Michigan has a big edge, with 25 wins to 10 for Ohio. Three games have been ties, 25 have been shutouts. Ohio tied Michigan 20-20 last year.

This year, Ohio has won seven games and lost one to Wisconsin. Michigan has lost two of its eight games, bowing to Minnesota and the Iowa Seahawks. Ohio has scored 275 points to 95 for the opposition and Michigan has run up 186 to 99.

Bucks Look Good in Statistics Book

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—No matter what happens Saturday when Ohio State squares off against Michigan for the Western conference football championship, the Buckeyes are virtually a cinch to carry off most of the statistical honors within the Big Ten.

Conference figures released today show that Ohio State, with only the Michigan game to go, has averaged more yards from running alone (301) than any other team has recorded by both running and passing. And on defense Coach Paul Brown's team is second only to Minnesota.

[illegible] of the Buckeyes have [illegible] leading scorers in Gene [illegible] Paul Sarringhaus and [illegible] of the top five ground gainers in Polish fullback No. 11, Sarringhaus and Les Horvath.

Harding Team May Have Played Last Grid Game for Duration

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

The less than 2,000 fans witnessing last Friday's Marion Harding-Galion clash, in which the former team clinched its fourth straight North Central Ohio league crown, saw what may be Harding's last grid contest for the duration.

Sorry to strike the sour note but it is a possibility which may materialize as a result of present government regulations. Transportation presented a difficult problem in the season just ended but with the rubber shortage becoming more acute and with gasoline rationing just ahead the athletic picture for the scholastics appears none too bright.

Undoubtedly all measures to assure some sort of a competitive athletic program will be taken by those in charge. However, and to avoid future criticism, it must be understood that the present sports program can survive only as long as government groups give the go-ahead signal.

President Roosevelt flashed this signal to operators of major league baseball clubs at the start of the league play last spring and the result was a perfect season (and we don't mean the Cardinal victory). In advising big leagues to continue to operate the President pointed out baseball's morale building affect among both men in the service and war production workers.

We are inclined to agree.

Of course, the best efforts of baseball are felt in the big league towns, but baseball, more than any other sport, is watched throughout the nation. Interest is keen even on the Pacific coast, separated from the nearest major league town by nearly 1,500 miles.

But consider the situation in Marion, certainly a representative town of the 30,000 population class. Take away high school athletics and that leaves a pretty slim sports program.

In the last two or three years the number of participants in all sports has swelled to all-time marks. Bowling, for example, now is indulged in, and regularly, by no less than 1,200 fans. Another 2,000 bowl occasionally, once or twice a month. And other sports programs are equally as popular. But first, last and always high school sports capture first interest.

Tennis, swimming, independent softball and basketball and countless other pastime recreation programs thrive equally as well in their respective seasons.

And transportation will affect only slightly the status of these activities. Naturally, inter-city bowling is out but this is hardly expected to seriously affect programs of local keglers.

If government regulations force inter-scholastic sports off the highways the result will be the same as eliminating major league baseball, only to a lesser degree.

DUROCHER TO LEARN HIS STATUS SOON; MEETS WITH RICKEY

Answer Due Thursday; Leo May Be Asked To Take Playing Role Again.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—It won't be long now until Leo Durocher, to say nothing of the rest of baseball, will know whether he remains manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers or is relegated to Lt. Leo Durocher.

In fact, at exactly 2 p. m. tomorrow, Branch Rickey, the new Dodger president, will have a definite answer for Durocher and a few thousand anxious Flatbush fans, as well as anyone else who might be interested.

Branch the Brain and Leo the Lip huddled for something like eight hours yesterday and worked out a number of problems, but the actual managerial assignment wasn't one of them.

Durocher, finding himself matched, if not over-matched, in the art of conversation, had little to say when the conference ended, but Rickey promised he would come to a decision tomorrow.

There was an indication that Durocher might be asked to return to the active player list.

"I used to think he was a corking good shortstop," Rickey said in discussing the conference later, "and in my judgment he still is a good player, if he would only think so. That could be a part of the question before us."

Durocher, now 37, did not play at all last year—his fourth as Dodger skipper—and not much the year before. But questioned later, he declared: "sure, I can play—if I have to."

JOHNSON, ATHLETICS TO CALL IT QUITS

Outfielder To Be Traded Off at Chicago Meeting.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18—Connie Mack and big Bob Johnson, the Philadelphia Athletics' hard-slugging Indian outfielder, came to a peaceful parting of the ways today after ten long, and sometimes hard, years.

Connie announced that the pride of the A's would be traded at the Chicago major league meeting opening Dec. 1, if a suitable deal can be arranged, and added:

"He deserves a chance to play on a pennant contender."

Johnson went home to Oregon to hunt and get a war plant job at the close of the 1942 season, announcing that he never again would play "with a team as poor as the last-place Athletics."

Johnson, who will be 34 years old Nov. 28, joined the Athletics in 1933.

Marysville Merchants Sold Out of Ammunition

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 18—Marysville and Union county with its former Sportsmen's breakfasts and dog show on the opening day of the hunting season will be a poor place to come to go hunting this year unless shells already have been purchased. All shotgun shells of the 12 gauge variety have been sold by Marysville merchants.

Earlier this fall it was indicated that the supply would be ample for this hunting season. However too many hunters have laid in supplies for two and three years and as a result Marysville merchants have no more shells for sale for 12 gauge guns.

Wreckage of Nazi Army Litters Desert for Miles

AP Newsman Sees Remnants of Great Army as He Flies West in British Blenheim Bomber.

By DON WHITEHEAD
AP War Correspondent

EN ROUTE TO THE WESTERN DESERT FRONT, LIBYA, Nov. 18—I have seen the graveyard of Rommel's hopes to conquer North Africa and it is a terrible sight to see.

Even this science of death and destruction on the desert, however, is not as awesome as that of Britain's victorious eighth army giving chase to the retreating enemy who is not many miles ahead.

The roads to Poland, Belgium, France and Greece must have looked like those I saw today—except that this time it was the Germans who were on the run and the British who were advancing.

The Italian radio said this morning that axis armies in North Africa were "advancing" to new positions. It was not funny, it was a rather pathetic thing to hear after seeing the tremendous number of British troops, tanks, guns and supplies moving up to the front in a line unbroken for miles and miles.

Sees Miles of Wreckage

Transports moving along the coast road looked like a great brown snake writhing across the desert floor through the littered wreckage of twisted, burned enemy tanks, planes and trucks. As far as I could see dust swirled and billowed over the army on the move.

The sight made you feel warm inside with the knowledge that this time the allies were going for the knockout and that there was stuff going up to do the job.

I came into the desert looking for the advance RAF unit to which I am to report. But as yet, I am unable to catch up with it. It is always just ahead. Planes move into airdromes right behind the enemy withdrawal. That is how fast this advance is going right now.

I left Cairo yesterday with only a vague idea of where I was headed. In fact, no one could say definitely where the advance units were. They had moved since the last reports.

Has Grandstand Seat

The plane that brought me up was a Blenheim with a glass-enclosed front and so I had a grandstand seat over the battle area where Rommel's defense was broken. The pilot was lean, lanky RAF Flight Sergeant Peter Bartlett of Nottingham, Eng., a flying fool if I ever rode with one.

I am glad he is on our side.

We piled bed roll, typewriter and duffle bag into the plane and then stacked in a carton of American canned beer and groceries.

"It is a good idea to take food along," I was told, "because we are moving fast and sometimes even battle rations may be slim. Take beer because the Germans have oiled the wells."

This is expensive because canned foods come high in this country with pork and beans at 40 cents a can, chocolate bars at 48 cents, soup 56 cents and beer at 40 cents.

I climbed into the nose of the ship and the yellow-haired kid headed across the green-checked fields of the Nile valley toward the brown desert sand dunes. The desert floor is criss-crossed with tracks of trucks and tanks in a crazy-quilt pattern.

We were flying about an hour when Pete turned the nose of the Blenheim down.

I thought we were going to plow into the sand. I looked back to see if anything were wrong. Pete grinned. Then he leveled off and skimmed over the desert in a ride I will remember as long as I live.

Reason for Hedge-hopping

We were not more than five feet off the ground at times, hurtling along at almost 200 miles an hour.

And then I saw why Pete had brought us down so low. Ahead were the gaunt, fire-blackened skeletons of what once had been Rommel's tanks.

They littered the desert over an area known as "the Hill of Evil Men." Many of them must have been funeral pyres for their crews. Many were knocked out by American-made Sherman tanks which broke through the minefields behind the night time bayonet attacks of the infantry.

As far as I could see the only objects on the desert were wrecked tanks.

There was plenty of evidence that the Germans and Italians had dug in to hold the Al Alamein line. Trenches, gun emplacements, dugouts and the remains of fortified positions were thick.

Over to the right of us was the blue Mediterranean and the coast road along which were streaming transports. There were truck-borne Sherman tanks, guns of all kinds and hundreds and hundreds of vehicles rolling along without even a sign of interference from Jerry.

HERE'S A COACH WHO WANTS CAGE RULES LEFT ALONE

Iba of Oklahoma A. & M. at Least Urges No Changes for Duration.

By The Associated Press

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 18—Most basketball coaches will tamper with the rules at the drop of a chairman's gavel.

So it's surprising to learn that Henry P. Iba of Oklahoma A. and M. college wants the rule book status quoed for the duration. Shortage of material, either for remodeling the symposium or the team, makes innovation too difficult, he insists.

Iba especially hopes the baskets are kept at their present height. Proponents to boost the buckets have dropped in recently from coasters who feel tall players now have too much of an advantage. Put up the nets, they argue, and even the tallest has to jump for it.

Aggie teams in the past often have been rangy but runty. This year they will have height supplied in one mineral chunk by a 7-foot, 214-pound freshman, Bob Kurland of St. Louis. Iba hopes the baskets stay right where they are so Kurland can continue to fan them with his ears.

A. and M., always travel minded, goes east again this year, opening Madison Square Garden's collegiate season Dec. 12 in a game with City college.

Iba's record is 316 games won and 74 lost in 15 years of coaching.

Baugh Again Tops Pro League Passing Records

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—Washington's Sammy Baugh, who lost forward passing honors in the National football league to Cecil Isbell of Green Bay last year apparently does not intend to let it happen again this season.

Baugh completed 19 of 26 attempts against New York Sunday and official figures released today showed him leading the league in the number of completions, with 108, and also in percentage of completions, with a 58+ mark.

Isbell, however, continued to lead in touchdown passes, having thrown 18 to Baugh's 13.

Hershey Hockey Team Beats Cleveland, 5-4

It was the only game played in the circuit and by losing the Barons missed an opportunity to tie the Indianapolis Capitals for second place in the Western half of the league.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—Football [illegible] all fun [illegible] A few weeks ago you may have read that when the Woodward, Iowa, High school football coach answered Uncle Sam's call, the town parson took over his coaching duties. Now comes a letter from Ben "Dad" Kremmyre reporting that after Woodward had a fair season, some one dug up an old rule requiring a coach to teach two other subjects. Since the parson merely was working for nothing, paying someone to take care of some of his other duties and nursing more sore muscles than most people have good order, he couldn't. All that requirement. As a result, all of Woodward's games were forfeited and even the three teams that beat "Dad's" school lost credit for it when the official scores were changed to 1-0. We're inclined to the stronger language than Ben Kremmyre's one-word comment: "Pitiful."

CHICAGO WHITE SOX GIVE 18 TO SERVICE

Jimmy Dykes Must Rebuild Entire Team.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jimmy Dykes, pugnacious Chicago White Sox manager, sniffed the ever-present cigar in his mouth which signalled that he had something to say.

"I'm happy—and it's a funny feeling being that way when you got so many troubles," he said. "Two more of my lads enlisted and that makes 18 in all to answer Uncle Sam's call. Of that I'm happy and proud.

"But, boy, have I got troubles! I nearly have to rebuild my whole baseball team for next year,"—and with that he viciously sank his teeth into the cigar.

Dykes had just received word from Len Perme, the left handed pitcher brought up from Waterloo, Ia., of the Three-Eye league last September, that he had joined the Navy. Earlier in the day, Myril Hoag sent in the tidings of his enlistment in the army air forces at Mather Field, Sacramento, Calif.

That placed 18 stars on the Sox service flag, one of gold in memory of Gene Stack, the first major leaguer to be drafted, who died last June.

SIX INDICTED IN CRAWFORD CO. COURT

Grand Jury Reports After Two-Day Session.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Nov. 18—Twenty-two witnesses were examined during investigation of nine cases by the Crawford county grand jury, which returned six bills of indictment Tuesday after being in session for two days.

Included in the indictments were two joint bills against Floyd H. Albright, Melvin G. Biglin and Daniel Rabold Jr., Richland county youths, charging arson and malicious destruction of property. The charges arise from a Halloween celebration in which the trio left a trail of destruction in the eastern section of Crawford county, including a burned abandoned house.

Other indictments were returned against Roger Pence, Galion, two bills charging larceny involving the theft of bicycles from Jack Gay and Dorothy Stowe.

Daniel C. Barrett of Galion was indicted on a charge of shooting with intent to kill as the result of an affidavit filed by his wife, Hazel, Oct. 2.

Charles Brooks of Marion was indicted on an assault and battery charge as a result of a charge filed by F. P. Robison, Aug. 24.

Harold Strauch of Galion served as foreman of the jury.

STATE COURT RULES ON TAX METHODS

Action Affects Goods Sold Outside Ohio.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18—Goods manufactured in Ohio by out-of-state corporations and sold outside the state must be included in computing the Ohio franchise tax, the Ohio supreme court ruled today in affirming the state board of tax appeals.

The decision was given in an appeal by the Aluminum company of America, a Pennsylvania corporation, which had protested a franchise tax levy of $13,722 for 1938.

After county courts were affirmed in their refusal to hold the Mercal Protective Association of Fort Wayne, Ind., liable on its indemnity policy to Dr. G. E. Jones of Lima, who had confessed judgment for $78.39 in favor of Grace Miller for alleged breach of warranty in treatments she received for obesity.

The contention of the insurance company that it was not liable under its policy because of Dr. Jones' confession of judgment and his refusal to cooperate in a defense against the claim was upheld by the courts. They held the doctor's action was a violation of the requirements of his insurance policy.

By refusing a review, the court upheld Stark county courts in awarding Thomas A. Flannagan, $5,000 damages from the Sterling Baking Co. for the death of his wife in an automobile accident.

GALION, Nov. 18 — With the approval of the Galion board of education for the formation of a high school "Victory Corps" Principal E. R. Pickering has been appointed director of the program. Under the present plan the corps will emphasize physical fitness, guidance, mathematics and science and preinduction training.

14-Ounce Baby Born to Couple at Akron

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Nov. 18—Fourteen-ounce Jean Twynham is thriving on six eyedroppers of milk daily.

Physicians said the four-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Twynham seemed in perfect health although she was born four months prematurely.

The Twynhams' other child, a son now two and one-half years old, weighed two and one-half pounds at birth. The mother is 23. The father, a truck driver enroute home from the east, is unaware of Jean's birth.

GIFT FOR MISSION VOTED

Sending of a Christmas box to an Indian mission in the west was voted by the Circle of Service, King's Daughters, at a meeting yesterday afternoon with Mrs. O. V. Roby of Delaware avenue. An article, "Thankful Hearts," was read by Mrs. A. H. Exton. Mrs. A. J. Houghton led devotions. A rummage sale in the near future was discussed by Mrs. Roby.

You owe it to yourself to inspect Lords great array of beautiful Christmas Gifts before you buy.

Army Woolies Have Variety of Uses

WHAT THE WELL DRESSED SOLDIER IS (NOW) WEARING.
SOME SOLDIERS WEAR ONLY THE TOP PIECE, OTHERS THE BOTTOM.
THE 2-PIECE SUIT OF G.I. UNDERWEAR IS SOMETIMES CALLED "JOHN L. SULLIVAN," AFTER THE EARLY PUGILISTIC EXPONENT OF TIGHTS.
THE UNDERSUIT IS POPULAR BEDTIME WEAR.
ALSO POPULAR ON BIVOUACS.
ONLY THE MOST RUGGED SOLDIERS REFUSE TO WEAR THE WOOL UNDIES.

Wide World Features.

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Where winter comes to the Armored force's stronghold at Fort Knox, an old practice is initiated.

It hinges around the wearing of long woolen underwear which Armyraiders have various uses. At this time of year, for example they start changing in and out of long underwear at bedtime. Some soldiers wear the underwear during the day, doffing it into pajamas before retiring, while others only don the long handles when retiring as an added insulation against lowering temperatures.

The John L. Sullivan.

This isn't the only time, however, when use of the underpinning sometimes called a "John L. Sullivan," because of its resemblance to the early pugilist's tights, is varied. Some soldiers wear only the top piece, others only the bottom. In fact, some of the more rugged fellows step to summer shorts.

Although the Army gives the soldier an option on wearing woolen underpants, it wouldn't take much encouragement to get most troopers to put on an extra pair when it's crackling, especially around 30 or 40 with frost nipping at pup tents and sending tremors through chilled spines.

Long or Short

The itch the soldier is doing his level best to get rid of long or short underwear. The office worker may spend the winter without aid of the woolens but to the fellow who must lie beyond a machine gun on frozen ground, or ride in a tank or on a speeding motorcycle, the extra clothing is as welcome as an asbestos suit to a fire-fighter.

There will probably be no style revue to demonstrate the correct wearing of the soldier's undergarment but if there should be, fashion experts will add a timely chapter to their handbooks on today's well-dressed male.

352 Youths in 18-19 Age Class in Hardin Co.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Nov. 18—Of 352 eligible 18 and 19-year-olds in Hardin county, 20 have enlisted and others have obtained releases for enlistment prior to induction in the Army draft, Miss Virginia Hoy, clerk of the Hardin county selective service board, said today. Men married after formation of the selective service and without children will be inducted in December, and other married men with wives only will be called to fill out the February quota, it was indicated.

FORMER BUCYRUSAN DIES

BUCYRUS, Nov. 18—Word has been received of the death in Parma, O., of Edson B. Rex, 76, former Bucyrus resident, which occurred Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Thompson where he has lived for several years. Interment will be made in the Myrtle cemetery west of Shelby.

BAPTIST CHURCH PASTOR ON PROGRAM OF P.-T.A.

Rev. Dana Austin Speaks To Oakland P.-T.A. Group

The Oakland school Parent-Teachers association met Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium. It was reported that the organization now has 251 members and 54 subscribers to the P.-T.A. magazine.

Plans were discussed for a nutrition course to begin soon. A donation of $5 was made to the United War Chest fund. A report was made on the financial success of the play, "Bolts and Nuts," given last week.

Rev. Dana Austin, pastor of Fite Memorial Baptist church, was guest speaker. His subject was "The Bad Influence on Our Children of the Comic Strips Sold on the News Stands." He also played two numbers on his musical saw. Jean Smith gave two readings.

The children of the school will present a Christmas program at the next meeting Dec. 15.

Tire Company Barred from Business 2 Years

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18—Found guilty of violating federal rationing regulations, the L. & J. Tire Co. of Youngstown, O., today was barred from further business for two years.

The company was penalized by the OPA for conducting transactions involving camelback material and recapped tires without receiving or giving rationing certificates, according to Paul J. O'Leary, deputy price administrator.

Under the suspension order, the L. & J. Tire Co. is forbidden to deal in new or recapped tires or any retreading or recapping material.

Kin of Marion Woman Loses Life in Fire

Mrs. Vernon Detrick of the Hotel Kumfort went to Bluffton yesterday, called there by the death of her four-year-old nephew, Eugene Bracy, son of her brother and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bracy. The boy and another two-year-old child were burned to death Monday afternoon in a fire which destroyed a barn in which they were playing. The funeral service will be conducted Thursday.

CIRCLE ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Ed McWilliams was an associate hostess when Mrs. George Duckwall entertained the Friendship circle, King's Daughters, last night at her home on Owsbert avenue. Mrs. John Powell, leader, was in charge of the meeting and conducted the devotions. It was announced that several members had volunteered to assist with the gas rationing and it was voted to contribute $5 for a Christmas treat for the residents of Maple Crest, King's Daughters home for girls at Bucyrus. Plans were made for a Christmas exchange, Dec. 15 with Mrs. John Powell as hostess.

SAVING OF WORKERS NEEDED FOR VICTORY

President Sends Message to Labor Conference.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18—President Roosevelt told the National Conference on Labor Legislation today the work of conserving manpower and protecting industrial workers was essential to victory.

In a message to be read to the conference, the President said "the standards which have been built up over the years to protect our industrial workers against accidents, disease and fatigue have great importance in connection with manpower of the war effort today. For if the industrial army is crippled by these enemies on the home front the supplies going to our fighting forces will be curtailed.

"In this war we are confronted with a challenge how to carry out the intent of the laws that you in the state labor departments administer and that organized labor has struggled to secure, while making necessary adaptations to wartime conditions? How to arrange working hours so that the war plant can operate around the clock while the human beings secure adequate rest?

"I want you to know that your difficulties in carrying out these programs are understood and appreciated. The hard work that still lies ahead of you is work that is essential to the winning of the war, and is also essential to the peace that we hope to make — a peace in which good living and working standards will be established for all peoples."

BAPTIST MEN OF AREA AT MARION MEETING

Granville Man Gives Talk on $600,000 Campaign.

Representatives from Loftus, Richwood, Morral, Grand Prairie, Fite Memorial, Marion and Trinity Marion Baptist Brotherhood groups were present when the Trinity brotherhood entertained men of the Marion Baptist Association Tuesday night at a supper rally.

Dr. W. H. Bowley of Granville, association executive secretary of the Ohio Baptist convention, spoke on "The Compassion of Christ," presenting the cause of the World Emergency relief fund of $600,000 which has been apportioned to churches throughout the convention.

C. C. Smith, association brotherhood president, was in charge. Lloyd Pickering is the local brotherhood president. Music was furnished by the male quartet composed of F. H. LeMaster, Dail German, Sobert Bauer and C. M. Gordy, accompanied by Mrs. George Barnhart, and the Sunday school orchestra directed by Mr. Barnhart. Rev. J. B. Holloway was host pastor.

FORD MILLER RITES

SOME STOCKS GAIN SUPPORT

But Market as a Whole Fails To Develop Any Definite Direction.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Stocks had no definite direction today although a number of market leaders were a little better supported after Tuesday's general decline.

Many market followers with tentative buying ideas again seemed inclined to withhold orders as they weighed the chances for a further corrective reaction from recently established peak levels.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

In improved positions a good part of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Boeing, American Telephone, Standard Oil (NJ), Sears Roebuck and General Electric. Dow Chemical slipped about 2 points and moderate declines were registered by Air Reduction, Westinghouse and Montgomery Ward.

Confidence remained the keynote of Wall Street expressions.

RICKENBACKER TO FINISH JOB

Rescued Flier Impatient To Complete Survey of Pacific Air Bases.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Still needing at least two weeks more in a hospital to recover from lone exposure at sea, Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker is impatient to complete inspection of the southwest Pacific's aviation facilities.

The World war flying ace, the war department said last night, already has expressed a desire to continue the mission which he was assigned by Secretary of War Stimson.

Forced down in the southwest Pacific Oct. 21, Rickenbacker was found on a raft with two companions three weeks later.

Capt. Rickenbacker rode the wing of the rescue plane while it taxied 40 miles on the ocean surface to its base, the war department disclosed today.

Lt. W. F. Eade, U. S. N., and Aviation Radioman L. H. Bonlte found the raft containing Rickenbacker and two companions, the Army said, landing their two-place Kingfisher observation scouting plane with the aid of flares on a sea of medium swells.

Col. Hans C. Adamson was taken from the raft and squeezed into the cockpit, the Army said and the Navy reported, but there was no room in the plane for Rickenbacker and Private John F. Bartek, so the two men were lashed to the wings and the plane started taxiing back to its base.

Bartek and Sgt. James Jones Reynolds, the latter one of three members of Rickenbacker's crew who were rescued from an island, "are still ill and weak from exhaustion," but are responding well to treatment and showing satisfactory improvement, the Army reported.

Two weeks in a hospital was the prescription for all survivors, the Army said.

Ohioan Aids In Rickenbacker Rescue

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18 — An Ohioan was credited today with a major role in the rescue of Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker and members of his crew lost three weeks in the southwest Pacific after their plane was forced down Oct. 21.

John H. Marvin disclosed that his son, Second Lieut. John Guilford Marvin, 26, charted the region over which planes should fly in searching for the famous flier after the rescue of Rickenbacker's pilot, Capt. William T. Cherry of Ft. Worth, Tex.

The elder Marvin, superintendent of records in a city department, said his son told him of his part in the rescue by long distance telephone and commented that "it was lots of fun to have the Army and Navy working for me."

Lieutenant Marvin attended Ohio university at Athens and was graduated from the University of Georgia. He entered the Army air force 18 months ago and was commissioned a navigator at Turner Field, Ga.

HARDING

have been dropped from the school's sports program altogether. Now, however, 10 league games are scheduled for this year and three independent games are also being considered. Arrangements for games with Delaware and Bexley, two long-time Harding cage rivals, have been completed and a third non-league encounter may be carded with the Columbus North team, a Harding foe for the last several years.

Principal O. H. P. Snyder of Harding, Dewey N. Bohyer, head basketball coach and athletic director, and E. Paul Huffman, faculty manager, are now completing arrangements for the non-league games. Last year all three of these games were on the Harding schedule and each game was played on the opponent's floor.

Transportation Problem

One of the chief problems in arranging any cage schedule this fall is the transportation problem. Principal Snyder told a reporter today that the Harding varsity would make all its trips by cars. Of course the only cars which can be used to transport ball players will be those bearing "A" cards, according to the gasoline rationing setup. Drivers of autos assigned "B" or "C" cars must swear to use their cars for the occupational duties for which they have been given special classifications.

Other schools in the league are planning to go by rail wherever possible. As a last resort Harding can do the same for at least two games, Both Galion and Ashland are accessible by rail. At this time the game which will probably cause the most difficulty will be the Mt. Vernon game. Harding winds up the first half of its league competition by making the trip to the Knox county basketball hotbed on Jan. 22. The Yellow Jackets will play here Feb. 26, Harding's final game before entering tournament competition.

In making plans for the cage season league officials discussed many problems which may arise during the three-month season. The officials' final decisions all indicate considerable uncertainty.

For example all league standings will be classed as tentative pending the basketball meeting at the close of the season. It is expected that some time during the season some games may not be played, transportation difficulties being such that one or more teams may not be able to keep their schedule dates. In such events the league officials will decide whether or not such games will have a bearing on the final standings.

No Reserve League

In voting to continue the varsity basketball, the league adopted a resolution abandoning the reserve league for the duration. Continuing only the varsity league will require but two or three cars to make the out-of-town trips, officials pointed out.

For the first time in the history of the N. C. O. the home team will pay a guarantee of $25 to the visiting team. In case the traveling team is unable to keep its engagement, the guarantee, of course, will be forfeited.

Championship Award

After formally awarding the 1941 conference football championship to the Harding Presidents, winners of seven out of eight games and unbeaten in league competition, the assembly approved a check in payment for a trophy for the Marion team.

This was followed by detailed discussion as to the advisability of continuing the cage sport, the league's only winter athletic activity. Before a decision was reached Harding officials described the Marion situation and also discussed specifications, seating capacity and relative matters concerning the Edison gymnasium. Following a brief discussion the league unanimously voted to accept Marion's offer and this acceptance more or less settled the question of whether or not the league would continue to operate.

Representatives of Harding attending the meeting were Principal Snyder, Mr. Bohyer, Mr. Huffman, Victor Dorris, head football coach; Joseph Petrich, assistant football and basketball coach, and James B. Smith, faculty member.

CORN AND RYE LEAD GRAIN PRICES LOWER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 — Grain prices drifted lower today, corn and rye leading the way with losses of about a cent a bushel at times.

Some grain men expressed belief the slow decline of wheat values recently, with closing quotations about 1 to 2 cents lower than at last week's peaks, may have relieved the tight situation which confronted some millers who complained about difficulty in operating with flour prices at ceilings. Continued slow flour demand, uncertainly about the government program to make loan wheat available to mills and indications that imports of Canadian feeds will be encouraged were blamed for the market's weakness.

ELECTION ANALYSIS ON TOWN MEETING PROGRAM

Dr. Gallup One of Thursday Night Speakers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — A United States senator, an educator, and an outstanding public opinion analyst will gather around the Town Hall microphone this Thursday night when "America's Town Meeting of the Air" attempts to analyze the election results.

Dr. George Gallup, founder and director of the American Institute of Public Opinion—The Gallup Poll—will give the factual results of the recent elections, analyzing the extent of the Republican gain and what such gains have meant in the past.

Senator John Danaher of Connecticut will discuss the implications of the recent vote from the

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

OLINA'S hand again, at my father's question, began a fluttering ascent to her lips, but with a gallant rallying of her regal poise, she clasped her hands tightly in her lap and put a quiet query.

"Will it be safe to bring him here?" she asked. "He says he is a hunted man, I should not like to endanger him."

"I am not going to bring him here," my father said gravely, "although if I did he would be safe enough while in my care. But if my conjecture concerning his identity is correct it is vital, both for his safety and for larger issues, that I meet him before the week is out. So I trust you will give me your gracious permission to act for you."

"Oh, of course," Olina said quickly. "Do anything you think best. I—I am greatly relieved to have the decision taken out of my hands. Even if I were conscious of this danger which he and you say is surrounding Mamma and me, I would not like to feel that I was endangering this chivalrous stranger by sending him that message."

My father looked at her keenly as she finished.

"Stranger," he repeated. "Then you have no conjecture as to the identity of this unknown friend?"

Olina flushed hotly, and shot me a glance of mute appeal.

"I am afraid Olina is still too bewildered to grasp the full significance of this message," I said. "Just before you came in, I told her why I was sure the writer of her queer fan letter must be her old playmate, King Georges of Trees, although he no longer is a king, and his country is a volcano. While she had the same conjecture, she cannot see how it is possible that he escaped death over there."

Believes Georges Alive

"It is indeed a miracle if he is alive and unharmed," my father said gravely, "but I believe he is in this country—this city—and that he is the man who wishes you to insert this personal if you think you need him."

Olina's face was suddenly lighted with tremendous hope.

"May I tell Mama what you have said?" she faltered. "She will be so glad. She—she was always very fond of Georges."

"That is what I wish you to do at once," he said. "I must have her consent, of course, and that of your father, before I insert this personal, which incidentally I shall not do for a day or two, while I wait for a certain development. But please ask one of them to telephone me, saying simply, 'I am satisfied with the arrangement you propose.' That will give me the go-ahead signal I wish, and I can act promptly when the need arises."

"I will go over and tell Mama at once," Olina said, rising. "I—I hope you will let me come over to see you again Aunt Madge—soon."

For she had not had a chance to tell me and the story of the time when she, Noel, Mary and Georges were romantically involved in betrothals which, fortunately for all four of them, did not result in international marriages.

"Of course," I told her cordially, then added, as I caught a warning flash from my father's eyes, "I will telephone you the first moment I am free and can reach you."

"I shall have no engagement except the theater until I have seen you," she said earnestly.

Then father summoned Adams from the next suite and sent Olina, in his charge, back to the Veritzen apartment.

"I am sorry to have to disappoint her," my father said when she had left, "but I am afraid she will not be able to see you for a day or two at least. I have work for you."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Children's Needs

THE HUMAN animal experiences so many and such profound changes in the early years of life that were a physician acquainted only with the adult body he would hardly know how to examine a newborn baby. He would be justified in thinking it was a new species of animal.

The proportions of the newborn baby are all different. The head is much larger in proportion to the body and the upper part of the head is away out of proportion to the lower. Watching the eyes, if you get a chance to find them open, you will notice that they move independently of one another and make no attempt to focus on objects as an adult's do.

The abdomen is much larger than the chest, due to the size of the liver. The abdomen is the furnace which prepares all the materials for growth and since that baby has to increase two or three times its size in a year or two, the furnace must be adequate.

The activities of this little bundle of humanity are naturally strictly limited. It tends to respond with mass movements when stimulated. That is, the whole body moves rather than a part, as is the case with an adult. He will draw up his legs, beat his arms about, shake his head and roll over in one movement.

It is doubtful how much the baby sees, hears, smells or tastes. Its sensory world is certainly very different from ours.

Everything the baby does is a gradual pattern of improvement. The sequence of motor activity is as follows:

1 month—lies on abdomen and lifts chin.

2 months—lies on abdomen and lifts chin and chest.

3 months—lies on back, reaches for object, such as a ball, usually misses it.

4 months—sits with support.

5 months—sits in mother's lap, grasps object.

6 months—sits on chair, grasps dangling object.

7 months—sits alone.

8 months—stands with help.

9 months—stands holding furniture.

10 months—creeps.

11 months—walks with support when led.

12 months—is able to pull itself to standing position by grasping furniture.

13 months—climbs stairs.

14 months—stands alone.

15 months—walks alone without help.

Here is the observation on activities of an eighteen-months-old baby:

He carries things to the porch: a spade, a wheelbarrow and a cart. He stooped over to pick up the spade, but arranged his feet several times before he could keep his balance when he leaned over. He backed down two steps of the porch, on his hands and knees, and walked up and down a narrow path on the lawn. When he fell down, he picked himself up by keeping his hands on the ground until he was sure his feet were steady.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Nov. 19

POSSIBLY a rather dull day, with matters moving along the line of least resistance. Adhere to routine developments, but with amiability and poise and not impulsively or carried away by erratic or irregular tendencies or irrepressible urges. There may be a hint of some friction, possibly a disappointment or estrangement in the purely private relations, domestic, social, or affectional.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a rather colorless year, with matters moving along in routine grooves. It might be advisable to work up a little energy or ambition, mainly by attention to details or the inauguration of new methods or systems. Maintain calm and restraint in all private relations which seem beset with inharmony, discord, disappointment or estrangements of a sudden and unpredictable nature. Guard against erratic, unconventional or impulsive behavior.

A child born on this day may be talented and original although disposed to be erratic, impulsive and self-indulgent, thereby jeopardizing its success and happiness.
